IN THE BEE TO-DAY.

WEATHER.

Observer Hagen, United States weather bureau, says:

The forecast for this vicinity for to-day and to-morrow is: Rain, slightly warmer to-day and slightly cooler to-morrow night; south to west winds.

The storm reported yesterday extends to-day from Wyoming to Ohio and from Canada to the gulf. On account of this extensive area it is hardly probable that a clear sky will be seen until Monday noon.

No gales or heavy rains have appeared as yet in this storm, though, highly westerly winds may be looked for about Monday, accompanied by a cold wave. The highest temperature on the weather bureau map to-day is 70 degrees, at New Orleans; the lowest, 20 degrees, at Minnedosa, Canada. At Toledo the highest yesterday was 50 degrees, the lowest this morning was 38 degrees.

Forecast for western New York and Ohio—Southerly winds and warmer, fair weather; warmer, cloudy weather and light rain Sunday.

For Indiana, Illinois and lower Michigan—Warmer, southerly winds; increasing cloudiness and rain to-day and Sunday.

For Upper Michigan and Wisconsin—Cloudiness and rain to-day; cooler, cloudy weather with rain or snow Sunday.

Commands Cleveland to Come to the Front

And Lead the Tariff Reform Forces to Victory.

Lessons Taught by the Recent Election.

Statesmen in Washington Read the Signs

That Point to Another Democratic President—Wise Counsel and a Platform Single to the Interests of Lower Taxation Will Win the Day in 1892.

Washington, Nov. 7.—(Special)—The results of the elections seem to be entirely satisfactory to the democrats here. The republicans are not saying much, but those who say anything at all candidly confess that they have received a black eye.

The victory in New York and Massachusetts is gratifying, more especially that in Massachusetts, as the contest was waged there from beginning to end on the tariff issue. It was to all intents and purposes a national contest, and indicates the position that, in all probability, the state will assume next year.

The victory in New York is also very gratifying, especially as the increases in the democratic vote were mainly in the manufacturing towns of the interior where the tariff reformers worked hardest.

Gov. Boies' success in Iowa is very gratifying and many predictions that he will be heard from next year are made.

Regret at Campbell's defeat is very general among the democrats. He made a splendid campaign and deserved re-election, but Ohio is a republican state, and with the issues dividing the parties squarely presented it is difficult to see why the state should go democratic.

The result of the contest seems to settle, in the minds of the politicians here, next year's presidential battle. Everybody says that Cleveland will be the nominee of the democracy and that he will win easily. Nearly all the democrats, whether opposed to Cleveland or not, or liking or disliking him personally, now declare that his nomination is inevitable, and the republicans, while, of course, doing so in a low tone, admit that he will be elected.

If Campbell had won in Ohio and Flower lost in New York, the result would have changed materially the general profile of democratic politics.

If Campbell had been victorious no one doubts that he would have been a very prominent presidential candidate next year. Now, of course, he is not. But he stands well for a place in the cabinet with the next democratic president.

Many democrats who were opposed to Cleveland bitterly and strenuously a week ago, are to-day declaring that he is the man to lead the democratic party next year and that his election to the presidency is inevitable.

Among the chief officers of the Government there has not been anything like cheerfulness. Nearly all the enthusiasm has been monopolized by the democrats, and the republicans from the president down to the department clerks, have not been very happy.

The democrats are boasting that they can carry New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island next year, and the republicans have not energy enough to deny it.

There is, however, a feeling in republican circles that the election of McKinley will make the republican national convention next year more interesting. The feeling is general that he will become a presidential candidate.

There is some reason to believe that Quay and the gang opposed to Harrison, afraid that Blaine's health will not admit of his making a campaign, will now take up McKinley and encourage him to enter the lists.

There seems to be no doubt that the republicans are anxious and ready to endorse the McKinley tariff bill, and many of them argue that under the circumstances McKinley would be, by all means, the most available and the most popular candidate.

McKinley himself has a presidential bee in his bonnet. He has been like the tame tiger who tasted blood for the past three years. He has been eager for the fray. He feels that if he had given his consent in 1888 he would have been nominated instead of Harrison, and, as a matter of fact, the chances are that he could have been nominated then.

Continuous reflection upon the opportunity that he threw away has whetted his appetite, and, according to all accounts, he is now ready to enter the lists as a presidential candidate.

If Blaine gets out of the way or is moved out of the way by his friends, the chances are that the struggle between Harrison and McKinley in the next convention will be very interesting.

A good many people believe, too, that Flower will become a presidential candidate. He has had the bee in his bonnet for some time, having been a candidate in 1884, and it is entirely safe to say that the democratic convention would not have to appoint a regiment to compel him to accept the nomination if the convention felt disposed to tender it to him.

But Flower will hardly be considered seriously by democrats, either in New York or outside of it, in connection with the presidency.

Mr. Flower's majority as governor of New York will be likely to tempt him to look higher, but, though Mr. Flower is a first-rate fellow, and, no doubt, will make a very popular governor of New York, according to the opinions given here by democrats he will be wasting his energy and his dollars if he tries for the presidency.

If the voice of Washington to-day in any way reflects the voice of the people of the United States, there is only one New Yorker now eligible for the presidency, and his name is Grover Cleveland.

Congressman Mills of Texas is here and feels thoroughly jubilant over the result of the election. He has cause to feel good. He made 39 speeches during the canvass, distributed through Ohio, Iowa, Massachusetts and New York. The result of the elections in all these states shows increased democratic majorities everywhere he spoke, except in Ohio.

The last speech he made during the canvass was at Jamestown, N. Y., and there the republican majority was reduced more than 2,000. It is no wonder, that Mr. Mills should feel reasonably happy over the result of the elections, although deploring the failure of Campbell to be re-elected.

A correspondent conversed with Mr. Mills to the following effect:

"What do you think of the recent elections?"

"Well, we have gotten the best of the fight and have made substantial advances all along the line. We have carried Massachusetts a second time, and by an increased majority; New York by a largely increased majority, and Iowa by a greater majority. After a most splendid fight by Gov. Campbell, we have lost and fallen outside the breastworks in Ohio, but have no cause to be cast down at that result.

"Ohio is a republican state which we have been trying to bring into the democratic column, and we think she is constantly getting near to us. If the democratic party could have the tariff question discussed among the farmers in the district school houses, we could win even in Ohio.

"Our gains have been in the manufacturing towns where most of the campaigning has been done. The same has been the case in Massachusetts and New York. I have not yet seen enough from Iowa to form an opinion as to the causes. The republican dispatches say that the democratic majorities in that state were in the towns, and republican majorities in the rural districts. In Iowa the prohibition question had much to do with the result. Prohibitory liquor laws and prohibitory tariffs are making Iowa democratic."

"You canvassed in all four states; what are the main issues?"

"In Massachusetts the fight was active and offensive against the McKinley tariff and free coinage of silver. It would be hard to say which was the more prominent. The sentiment of the state seems to be unanimously against free coinage in both parties and the current is setting heavily against prohibitory tariffs. In New York, while there was a good deal said about the tiger and the fair, the heavy batting was done in the country districts by tariff fighters. In Iowa, as I said, it was the tariff and prohibition, and in Ohio it was tariff and silver."

"After looking over the field, what is the prospect for next year?"

"I think it is very good. With a good platform and good candidates, we can carry certainly New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and probably Massachusetts in the east, and Indiana and Illinois in the west, with a good fighting chance for Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa. To win we must fight the enemy and not fight each other.

If we go to the country on the issue of tariff reform alone we will succeed, because we are thoroughly united on that question. If we press the issue of free coinage of silver, in my judgment we will lose every eastern state and gain nothing in the west. We will lose the presidency, the senate and house, free coinage, tariff reform and everything, and get for our pains force bills, military usurpation of ballot boxes, and life officers guarded by soldiers while certifying local government out of the hands of the people.

General Grant is credited with saying that the democratic party could always be relied upon to make a fool of itself at the wrong time. I hope we will break the record this time; to do it we must stop fighting each other and fight the republican party from now till the sun sets on the first Tuesday of November, 1892."

The alliance people here in Washington, comprising mainly, at the present time, Colonel Polk, the president, and Dr. McCune, the grand supreme boss, are rather discouraged over the result, although they will not say so openly. It has been no secret that McCune has been an employe of the republican party for some years past and expects profitable employment for at least a year more. Polk has just returned from California, where, it is presumed, he went to see Stanford and talk over presidential politics.

The alliance people have been bragging that they were going to beat John Sherman in Ohio, whether the democrats assisted them or not; the figure they cut in Ohio and elsewhere does not seem to be very flattering, but still they are crowing as usual. Colonel Polk, in a burst of confidence to-day, exclaimed:

"No campaign was ever made by our people in New York or Ohio. We did not have forces sufficient to carry on a campaign and were only organized in those states last spring. For some unaccountable reason the party there was unable to push the work during the summer. The result has no bearing whatever upon the alliance movement, and will not affect it in the least. The ballots cast signify absolutely nothing, so far as we are concerned. What the policy of the alliance in particular states will be in the future I cannot now say. 'Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.'

"Just now it is all smoke and fog, and no man can tell anything about it until the air is clarified. Of course, I cannot speak about Virginia and Kansas, where the alliance was organized, for I have heard nothing from those states. There may be local or state issues there that will operate against us. One thing is absolutely certain—the alliance people of this country will stand for their demands, and will keep up an aggressive fight until those demands are complied with.

"In Kansas the democrats and republicans combined against us. A year ago the democrats voted with the people's party, but this time they joined with their old enemy wherever they possibly could do so. This will naturally reduce the aggregate of our vote in Kansas, but as an organization we are stronger than ever."

No republican of any consequence cares to express an opinion. They are all down in the mouth. They all feel that the result yesterday was a photograph of what they may expect next year in the great national contest.

NEW YORK FAILURE.

New York, Nov. 7.—Mary C. Schantz, dealer in neckwear at 831 Broadway, made an assignment to-day giving preferences amounting to about $5,000.

WILL JIM RUN THE RISK?

Shrewd Men Say that Blaine Will Not Run.

The Late Election Furnished Him No Hope.

Harrison Will Be Allowed to Carry Off the Honor of Nomination and then Go Down to Certain Defeat.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—The elections are still the chief topics of interest here. It was really remarkable to see how both republicans and democrats drew satisfaction from the returns.

The president and all his cabinet officers except Blaine claimed that the fact that Ohio went republican by a small majority, with democrats at a disadvantage, was an indorsement of the administration and its support of McKinleyism.

Ohio, they claimed was the only state that voted on national issues, and on the tariff and on silver it voted with the administration. At the same time McKinley's victory was not sweeping enough to make him a formidable rival for the presidential nomination against Harrison who represents McKinleyism as well as McKinley himself. Massachusetts, they thought, went democratic on local issues, chiefly because Russell was the stronger candidate. New York went democratic wholly on local issues.

The president is represented as gratified that the influence of the New York republicans should be neutralized by their defeat. Iowa, of course, went democratic on the liquor question, and Pennsylvania went republican because the convention indorsed Harrison's administration.

None of the states which went democratic would go democratic next year, the president said, and he sees no reason to abandon his efforts to get a renomination. As a matter of fact, he is disappointed and discouraged, but he is willing to take the chances. He thinks Blaine will not want to.

In this he seems to be mistaken, Blaine thinks he can carry New York, Massachusetts, Iowa and every doubtful state next year, and he thinks too, that he is the only one in the republican party who can. He thinks McKinley's election was the result of the letter he wrote to the Bucyrus editor, and not the result of Ohio's devotion to McKinleyism, and that the result in Pennsylvania was directly due to his friends.

Nevertheless, Harrison's opinion that the result is likely to prevent Blaine from taking the nomination is held by many shrewd observers, who think Blaine does not want to take a risk.

It is admitted by most democrats, and held by most republicans, that the nomination of Cleveland for president and the election of Mills for speaker are rendered probable by the success of the democrats, and concentration on the tariff issue. The speeches of Cleveland and Mills in New York and Massachusetts stand out now in men's minds. The talk of a western candidate for the presidency seems to have gone down with Campbell. Gov. Boies, even, is talked only for vice president.

Everybody but Secretary Foster seems gratified at the prospect that Sherman will be re-elected. It is not strange that Foster, who wants so much to be senator, should be sorry to see his own chance disappearing in the probability that Sherman will be re-elected in spite of Foraker. Foster hoped to slip in between the two.

The apparent subsidence of the Farmers' alliance is received with gratification by both sides. The democrats do not have to argue out their satisfaction. The returns on which it is based speak for themselves. They say that they indicate that the democratic party has held what it really gained last year, and that they indicate what it will accomplish next year.

The Massachusetts result pleases them most. They all speak of it first. They do not agree with the president that Russell was elected chiefly because he was the better man, but they claim that it was because he stood for tariff reform and honest money, and that this means future victories in Massachusetts.

It also means, eastern democrats think, a very wholesome effect on the speakership campaign, on the action of the house of representatives and on the action of the next democratic national convention. Some of them who have been in Massachusetts think that the defeat of Allen will seriously retard the ambition of Henry Cabot Lodge, whom they recognize as the real candidate. Thee democrats who have been in Massachusetts are full of praise for Josiah Quincy and the other young men who helped Gov. Russell make what they generally term his splendid campaign.

CHARLES TROUT ARRESTED.

The Confederate of Musgrave in Jail.

Detectives Doing Good Work in Clearing Up the Scheme to Defraud the Insurance Company.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 7.—Charles Trout, the confederate of Bob Musgrave, under arrest at St. Paul, was lodged in jail this morning. Both were recently indicted for conspiracy to defraud the insurance companies in which Musgrave had $35,000 in policies.

Musgrave, who was then a fugitive from justice here, because of forged deeds and mortgages, took a skeleton to a log cabin near the city and set fire to the cabin.

The purpose was to make it appear that he had been burned to death. Trout took chosen friends to the cabin to see Musgrave before the fire for the purpose of having witnesses to prove that Musgrave had been there.

NEW OIL WELL.

Wapakoneta, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—Yesterday, near Buckland, seven miles west of this city, the Ohio Oil company struck one of the best flowing wells in the field. It has a daily production of two hundred barrels. This well is expected to hold out because it is in no wild cat territory.

ANOTHER CUT IN WAGES.

Where Does Protection Aid the Workingman?

One of the Greatest Iron Companies in the Country Reduces Wages Fifteen Cents a Day.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—The great iron firm of Jones & Loughlin to-day reduced the wages of the laborers employed by it from $1.50 per day to $1.35.

There was much grumbling among the men over the reduction but they are powerless to resist, having no organization and being unskilled hands.

ANOTHER OHIO FREAK.

A Tiffin Man Has a Strange Animal in His Possession.

Tiffin, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—Tiffin scientists are interested in a queer animal owned by Dr. Jeffrey here, which is a combination of rabbit and cat in about equal proportions.

It is alive, full grown, and thoroughly domesticated. It has black and white markings, and with the exception of a tremulous motion of the head it is free from deformity. It has the familiar cotton tail of the rabbit, with the hind legs, pink eyes, and crouching posture of that animal, but its ears, claws, head and body are those of a cat.

At the call of "Jenny," it hops up to a person, purrs, and invites caresses. It eats cabbage and meat, hates the sight of a dog, but is indifferent to mice.

The gentleman who owns this zoological freak, purchased it of a countryman, and has refused a handsome offer for his pet. Hitherto there has been no known cross between species so widely dissimilar as the feline and the rabbit

MADE THE MAN INSANE.

Joy Unbalanced the Mind of Mr. Payne.

His Wife Left Him and the News of Her Return Completely Unnerved Him.

New York, Nov. 7.—George E. Payne, the young real estate dealer of Long Island City, whose wife, Julie, left him some weeks ago, has become violently insane from grief and anxiety over her disappearance and his father, Alvin T. Payne, a former corporation counsel of the city, has been compelled to ask police aid in conducting his son from the real estate office to his home.

The family physician believes that the dementia is temporary, and that the knowledge of his father having located the whereabouts of the young wife, and gained assurances that she will return to her home, husband and children had unbalanced the greatly overwrought mind of the distracted young husband.

Payne is a popular young athlete and a member of the Jefferson club, and the disappearance of his wife, who was also extremely popular, has created widespread sympathy for him. A strong quarrel created the breach, and when Mrs. Payne, who was formerly a Miss Berthet, of Astoria, ran away, her husband flooded the metropolitan papers with personals addressed to "Julie," pleading with her to forgive and forget and imploring her to return to her home, but all without avail until within a day or two when Mr. Payne, sr., found out her whereabouts and was speedily in communication with her and to-day received a telegram that she would return.

The gentle breaking of this information to young Payne, was sufficient to produce the alarming symptoms named. He is now at his home on Nott avenue, watched over by the family and a physician.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

It Is a Coming Democratic Section.

Governor Boies Tells What It Was that Re-Elected Him—Tariff Reform the Chief Point.

Des Moines, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Gov. Boies is a happy man. And well he might be. He has scored a wonderful victory. He has returned to Des Moines and in answer to a question, as to what he attributed his success, he said:

"The returns indicate that it was due to several causes. The general distribution of our party gains show that more than one influence was at work. The tariff question was the national one, which, allied with the local one of prohibition, contributed most to it. Our gains in the rural counties are to be attributed to it."

"Do you think the monetary question exerted any influence?"

"No; it was not discussed. Our opponents talked some about it. They may have hurt themselves, but not us."

"You discussed the tariff question fully in the farming communities, did you not?"

"Yes, that discussion would have been forced upon me by the attack of the republicans upon my New York speech, even if I had sought to avoid it, which I did not. The discussion of that speech embraced the discussion of the tariff question, as it relates to the farming industry, and everywhere I found large and interested audiences. The returns show that the discussion was not without its results."

"There was never at any time any intention to Michiganize the state, governor?"

"Certainly not. The northwest is democratic. It will support that party on great public questions if properly appealed to, and it would be madness for it to attempt to purloin what it can honorably gain. There is nothing clearer in politics than that the northwestern section of the union is drifting rapidly into the democratic party on tariff lines."

"How do you interpret the general results of Tuesday's elections?"

"They indicate that the country is restless under republican rule; it is ripe for a change."

"Do you think the results indicate democratic success next year?"

"Yes, with courage and wisdom in legislation and formulation of party doctrines."

The governor declined to be drawn into discussing the relative merits or possibilities of presidential candidates.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The Iron Industry in Grand Shape.

The Maverick Bank Failure Did Not Affect the Money Market—General Business Review.

New York, Nov. 7.—The R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The failure of a widely known bank at Boston was the striking event of the week, but has caused astonishment rather than disturbance. Withdrawals of money from this point to fortify Boston have caused higher rates. Crops are moving freely, so that it seems scarcely possible that any important monetary disturbance should arise at present.

Reports from all parts of the country show that business, though interrupted somewhat by the elections, has been healthy and large in volume.

The iron industry, in spite of the lowest prices known for some products, shows no despondency, and the demand for manufactured iron and steel does not diminish. The copper trade is just now unsettled, but tin is slightly stronger, though lead is lower 4.1 cents. A slight decrease appears in the latest shipments of boots and shoes from Boston. Trade in dry goods looks a little better; spring woolens are in rather more demand, the dress goods season is fairly satisfactory, and agents have begun to show overcoatings with fair results. Trade in cottons is not just now equal to last year's, but for the whole season thus far it has been considerably larger.

Speculation has lifted wheat 1 3-4 cents, though the western receipts continue enormous. Exports for the week thus far are about equal to those of recent weeks. Corn has declined 1-2 cent, with somewhat increased receipts in the west, and cotton is 1-8 cent lower, with very heavy receipts at southern ports. Oil, pork products and hogs are somewhat lower, but coffee is 1-2 cent higher. The general average of prices is a shade lower for the week, and the markets are less embarrassed than usual by cliques maintaining artificial prices.

In the main, labor is well employed with few controversies about wages. Throughout the country collections seem to be fair for the season, and on the whole gradually improving.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 226, as compared with a total of 225 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 215.

A BANK IN TROUBLE.

Florence, Ala., Nov. 7.—The bank of Florence failed to open its doors this morning. The bank's officers refuse to make a statement. The assets and liabilities cannot be learned. Several exciting scenes were enacted in the bank. One depositor gained access to the vice-president's office and at the point of a pistol demanded his money. He was persuaded to desist.

ANOTHER RUN.

Boston, Nov. 7.—The Italian bank of D. Filippo was besieged by its depositors to-day, their confidence having evidently been shaken by the failure of the Maverick bank and the run on the Five Cents Savings bank. The concern is said to be perfectly solvent.

TAX REPEALED.

London, Nov. 7.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres states that the senate of the Argentine Republic to-day passed the bill repealing the tax levied on private bank deposits.

SHERMAN'S FIRST CARD.

He is Playing a Clever Game for the Senatorship.

It Was Silver that Saved the State, and Consequently Foraker Did Not Aid in the Recent Campaign.

Mansfield, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—John Sherman in a talk here says that silver was the leading issue in the late campaign, and that the tariff did not cut much of a figure. It will be remembered that John did the financial part of his horn-blowing this fall and consequently he figures out that John Sherman is the logical candidate to succeed John Sherman in the United States senate. Great head John has got.

"I believe," said the senator, "that we have won a great victory. In many respects it is but an indorsement or echo of the fight of 1875 upon the financial question. President Hayes and myself then made an issue for the honest dollar, and this election in our commonwealth only shows that the people of this state are true to the best elements of all life. Greenbacks and free silver mean the same thing, and for the second time in our political history the state of Ohio has spoken and decided that question as far as it can. I do not mean to say that the tariff has not played an important part in the game, but that matter I will discuss farther on."

"What effect will this have upon the election next year?"

"A very favorable one. This campaign teaches many useful lessons which I will endeavor to point out. In the first place, so far as the republican party is concerned, this result in Ohio fixes the silver question as one of the issues of the next presidential contest, and decides it, so far as this state is concerned. I am convinced that a free coinage bill will be passed by the congress which assembles in December. I also believe that such a bill as will be framed will be vetoed by President Harrison. That will naturally make free silver the feature of the next presidential fight. In fact, it will be the leading issue, upon which there are vast differences of opinion in both parties. It is exactly like the tariff; local conditions and interests govern the sentiment and action. I doubt very much whether the democracy in national convention will press claim for free coinage. If they should, there would be no other issue of significance in the next campaign. The financial battle that we have fought in Ohio will then be transferred to the nation, and a contest such as we have never seen will be the result. The tariff will be prominent, but not the vital point of the contest."

INJURED IN A RUNAWAY.

Wapakoneta, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—This morning while Henry Burlett, 20 years old was driving home in a large wagon his horse became frightened at a dog and ran away, demolishing the wagon and throwing him out, cutting an ugly wound on his head and receiving internal injuries which will likely prove fatal.

A MONSTER FERRY BOAT.

The Double-Decked Cincinnati Is Afloat.

Two Hundred and Six Feet Long, Fire Proof and Unsinkable, with Two Handsome Cabins.

New York, Nov. 7.—The double decked ferry boat Cincinnati, of the Pennsylvania railroad company, has made her trial trip from the foot of Cortland street, carrying a number of invited guests around the harbor.

The Cincinnati is one of the finest ferry boats afloat. She is built of iron, with an extreme length of 206 feet and beam of 65 feet. She is one of the double-deck ferry boats designed to discharge passengers at the new station in Jersey City, on the level of the waiting rooms and car tracks, and in this city on the level of the West street bridge.

By this arrangement accidents at street crossings in Jersey City will be impossible, and passengers on arrival in New York can cross the crowded West street by bridge, avoiding all annoyance and delay. Ultimately it is expected to connect the bridge with the elevated railway platforms.

Each of the cabins of the boat is 144 feet long and 15 feet wide, the upper one being carpeted, and having seats for 196 persons. The lower cabin has a tiled floor and seats for 304 passengers. There are 112 incandescent lamps in the cabins.

The hull of the Cincinnati is divided into 14 water-tight compartments, and all the deck beams are of iron, thus making her as nearly unsinkable as possible, as well as fire proof.

CAN COME IN FREE.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Acting Secretary Spaulding has instructed collectors of customs to admit free of duty until July 1, 1892, all machinery intended for use in producing sugar from beets and to accept the affidavit of the owner as prima facie evidence of the intended use of the machinery, but to require a bond equal to the duty that proof be produced within one year after importation, that the machinery has been used in a beet factory in the production of sugar.

Talk of Dom Pedro Returning to the Throne.

Open Charges of Jobbery, Public Robbery and Other Crimes Made Against the Fonseca Government—The Ruler a Sick Man.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 7.—The situation is improving. The troops no longer guard the telegraph offices and the censorship is abandoned. Order is maintained and business is uninterrupted. Exchange is firm and improving. The people are satisfied with the recent events.

Charges of Jobbery.

London, Nov. 7.—The Times cablegram from Rio Grande do Sul states that Fonseca was apparently compelled by the army and navy to announce himself as dictator.

It is believed in Rio Grande do Sul that the empire will be restored. The correspondent adds: The matter is not yet certain, but personal observation in Dictator Fonseca.

1890 induced the suspicion that the change to a republic was only the cloak for the ambition of certain demagogues, and not the desire of the nation.

"Jobbery, public robbery and the lowering of the rate of exchange which have occurred since, have engendered discontent which was the precursor of the present trouble.

"Northern Brazil is decidedly in favor of an empire and only in central Brazil is the republic popular. This may lead to Dom Pedro's grandson becoming chief of the state, under a regency of three prominent citizens, representing the northern, southern, and central provinces, and insuring the unity of Brazil."

Talk of Dom Pedro.

New York, Nov. 7.—The Herald's Valparaiso dispatches say that news was received there yesterday from Rio Janeiro that President Fonseca had held a long conference with two prominent imperialists.

This has given rise to a rumor that Dom Pedro will be requested to return to Brazil and take the throne.

In case of his declining the offer, the story goes that the throne will be offered to the Conde D'Eu, the husband of Dom Pedro's daughter. These stories are merely rumors, however. The president publicly promises a constitutional government.

QUIETING THE GOSSIPS.

Why the Princess of Wales Remains in Russia.

She Would Rather Help the Czar Celebrate than be at Her Husband's Birthday Jubilee.

London, Nov. 7.—It is said to be with the entire consent of the Prince of Wales that the Princess of Wales will be with the czar and czarina at the celebration of their silver wedding on Monday next, instead of helping to celebrate her husband's 50th birthday.

The princess will present also to the czar and czarina the gift specially manufactured for the occasion, in behalf of the prince.

This gift consists of two large pilgrim bottles in silver, which are unique in their form and workmanship. They were sent to Russia by special courier.

The Duchess of Edinburgh, the czar's only sister, will also be present, but without the duke, who is enjoying himself in London, in the absence of his Russian wife.

The Princess of Wales will remain with her sister, the czarina, until about the close of November. The two sisters are strongly attached to each other and have not remained so long together in years as on this occasion. There appears, however, to be no ground for the gossip that there is any coolness between the princess of Wales and the princess.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

The Vote Cast in Ohio Was Not Large.

Candidate Rist Says It May Reach Thirty Thousand, and that the Fight Will Continue.

Cincinnati, Nov. 7.—The people's party vote in the state is placed by the republican leaders at about 15,000. 3,000 of which was cast in this city. The leaders of the people's party contend that the whole vote cast for the party in the state will reach 30,000.

Their candidate for lieutenant governor, Frank Rist, says that the party will continue its organization and expect to poll a largely increased vote next year.

CAMPBELL CARRIED STARK.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 7.—A special to the Plain Dealer from Canton says the official vote of Stark (McKinley's) county as verified yesterday gives Gov. Campbell a plurality of 154.

NOT IN THE RACE.

Flavin Elected by a Handsome Plurality.

The Parnell Candidate Badly Defeated.

He May Contest on the Ground of Priestly Interference,

When Religion Would Have Full Sway.

The Tories Would Court Such a State of Affairs and the Contest Would Result in Another Bloody Cork Election.

Cork, Nov. 7.—The McCarthyites are rejoicing over the result of the election, and the Parnellites are sullen, but apparently not despondent. Appearances indicate that the defeated faction intends to make Cork lively to-night if there are any bands or bonfires.

The Parnellites declare that they will not give up the fight, but will continue to contest the constituencies, in which they have any reasonable number of supporters.

It is said that Redmond may oppose the seating of Flavin on the ground of undue clerical interference. The Parnellites threatened to take this ground after both the Kilkenny and Sligo elections, but Parnell himself concluded against the proposal, as he wished to avoid, he said, bringing the religious issue into parliament.

Redmond, however, has no such scruple, and, as he is made desperate by defeat, there is little doubt that he will take the step indicated.

This would be highly pleasing to the Tories, by enabling them to publish broadcast the testimony of clerical influence and intimidation.

There is also little doubt that Flavin would be unseated and the spectacle of the Cork contest again presented for the edification of Great Britain.

The result of the election yesterday to fill the vacancy in the house of commons from the city of Cork, created by the death of Charles Stewart Parnell, is announced as follows:

Martin Flavin (McCarthyite)	3,669
John E. Redmond (Parnellite)	2,157
Capt. Sarsfield (conservative)	1,161
Plurality for Flavin	1,512
Majority for Flavin	351

HORRIBLE BARBARITY.

Superstition Rules the People of Madras.

A Man Hung Up by Hooks Stuck in His Back and Left Swinging for an Hour in Order to Bring Rain.

Calcutta, Nov. 7.—The British authorities of Madras have instituted an investigation relative to a horrible barbarity and superstition reported from Madras.

Rain has been much needed in that vicinity and the drouth was attributed by the superstitious natives to the malignity of an evil-minded female diety.

To propitiate this diety they resolved upon reviving an old practice of torture, known as "hooking."

A victim was found who consented to undergo the ordeal. The points of hooks were pushed into his back, a rope was fastened to the hooks, and the poor wretch was hoisted into the air. His shrieks of agony were regarded as evidence that the goddess was being made to hear and would answer with the long-looked-for rain.

After the man had hung for an hour, he was taken down, apparently not fatally injured, although with two deep wounds in his back.

WASHINGTON THE BEAUTIFUL.

An Interesting Tour Over the Capital City by Means of Stereoptican Views.

"Washington the Beautiful" was the title of a most interesting lecture delivered by Prof. H. P. R. Holt at the Central Congregational church last evening, which he illustrated by a series of stereoptican views.

The professor introduced his subject by calling attention to the fact that it was the desire and longing of Americans in childhood, manhood and old age, to visit Washington, the beautiful capital city of our country.

There are a great many people who are unable to go to Washington, so we will reverse the general order of things and bring Washington to you," concluded the speaker as a plan of the great city was thrown on the immense stretch of canvas.

"Washington," said he, "was laid out on paper, every street, square and alley, before a line was struck or stake driven."

From here the tour of the city began, and so vividly and realistic were the many interesting points and corners of this beautiful city portrayed on the canvas that it could only be compared by a real trip over the same ground.

In rapid succession, like a gigantic panorama, the canvas revealed 200 illustrations, including portraits of James E. Campbell, William McKinley, R. B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, President Harrison, Baby McKee and others.

Prof. Holt acted as guide and by his thorough knowledge of the city and clear, intelligent manner of explanation, none of the interesting points were missed.

SPORTING.

The League Club in New York has taken a stand against high salaries. The Association is digging a grave for itself by taking league players at such high figures that no money can be made. The following is a small part of what the association will pay this year: Rusie $6,500, Connor $4,000, Richardson $4,000, Pfeffer $4,500, Wilmot $3,500, Stearns from Kansas City, $3,500, Dahlen $3,500, Browning $3,500, Gunson $2,800, and so on. The total of the above is $35,800 to nine men. At that rate base ball becomes a business absurdity, for these clubs must have 143,200 people at twenty-five cents per head to pay full salaries.

Sporting circles in St. Louis are agitated over a foot race yesterday between Billy Joyce, formerly third baseman of the Toledo Club and a certain professional sprinter who is sailing under the name of Phil Doyle. The match was for $250 a side, and the distance was 100 yards. Joyce got away first and covered the distance in 10 and three-quarter seconds, beating Doyle by three feet. About $2,000 changed hands on the race.

GATES AND CONDUCTORS

The Bone of Contention Between Council and Railroad.

The Council Committee Decides that They Must Be Placed on All Cars in the City.

The council committee on railroads met last evening and discussed the new general street railroad ordinance. It was decided that safety gates and conductors must be placed on all cars, large or small, and this the councilmen dared to do directly in the face of opposition by the street railway company.

The first matter before the committee was an ordinance granting the Robison company the right to double track its line along Lawrence avenue, from Bancroft to Bartlett street, Bartlett street to Twenty-second and Twenty-second to Washington.

A remonstrance against this was presented by Mr. J. L. Richardson, representing the property owners along Lawrence avenue between Bancroft and Monroe streets, where the street is only 30 feet wide. After some discussion the remonstrance was disregarded and the ordinance approved.

The new general ordinance regulating the operation of street railways which has hung fire in the council for so long was then taken up. The first snag reached in the reading was the section requiring safety gates to be placed on all cars over 12 feet in length. Mr. Morgan moved that the words "with bodies over 12 feet in length," be stricken out, thus making the provision so that all cars must be provided with gates.

Mr. Lang objected strongly to this, and considered that gates would be a nuisance on short cars. The committee, however, broke away from him and adopted the motion.

Next came the same fight over again on the provision requiring conductors on all cars over 12 feet in length. Mr. Coleman moved that the words "with bodies over 12 feet in length" be stricken out of this section also. This met with more strenuous objection from Mr. Lang than did the safety gates and he claimed that the company could not afford to put conductors on the Dorr street and Adams street lines.

The committee seemed to be of the opinion that these lines paid, in spite of what Mr. Lang said and adopted the motion which will require conductors on all cars. The ordinance as amended was then approved.

A POWERFUL HAMMER.

The most powerful steam hammer in the world has just been completed at the Bethlehem iron company's works. It strikes a 125-ton blow, and is to be used for forging ingots into armor plate. The ingots of metal weigh from 100 to 150 tons each, and they will be forged into shaped ones with great ease by the pounding of this enormous hammer. This hammer takes the championship honor away from a giant hammer at the works of Schneider and Co., of Le Creusot, France, which delivers a force of 100 tons at every tap.

NEW BASE BALL LEAGUE.

A Chance to Revive the Old International.

Other Cities Are Moving in This Direction.

Shall Toledo Join the Swim Once More and Listen to the Clatter of the Batter as He Hammers Out His Hits?

Toledo has had a strange base ball career, but judging from the talk on the street and the gossip in the club rooms, there is still a demand for the national game in this city.

Everybody remembers the old International league and recalls the splendid article of base ball put up by that organization. Had Toledo remained in that class she would have had a prosperous base ball career, but she was induced by the fairy tales of Chris Von Der Ahe to join the Association, and Toledo's tale of woe consequent upon such action is too well known and too painful to repeat.

Toledo has now the most perfect street car system of any city in the state, whereas in the past two years it was the worst, and the changed conditions in the base ball world would make it possible for Toledo to secure a good club in a good league.

Information received by the Bee from inside Association sources is to the effect that Columbus is to be taken by the nape of the neck and dumped out of the circuit. Toledo, Columbus and Detroit are rival cities and should be in the same ball league. The railroad connections and local pride make it possible for them to do a good business if linked together.

Detroit stands ready to have a club in the field.

Columbus cannot get along without base ball.

Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany and Troy want the International revived.

Toronto is already moving to have a ball club in same league the coming season.

With all these conditions it is plain to be seen that the International will be revived and Toledo can gain by taking hold of the matter.

THE CROPS ARE MOVING,

And the Demand for Cars is Greater Than Ever.

A Thrust at Scalpers—A Joke on a Passenger Man—C., H. V. & T. Earnings.

Freight business is on, and the usual car famine is beginning to manifest itself. Every year about this time there is an extraordinary demand for cars.

Last fall it was estimated by railroad men that there never was such a gigantic movement of freight and demand for cars, but it was argued that if the equipment in the market was sufficient to meet such a demand the limit had certainly been reached and additional cars in any great number would not be required.

No one, however, anticipated such a wonderful yield of crops the country over. The road that had confidence enough in the early estimates of what the crop was going to be and hustled out new cars, is "in it," to use an expression of the day.

The crops in the west and northwest have begun to move, and the freight agents are moving around to get cars, no matter how or where, just so they can be procured for temporary relief.

Said Hudson Fitch, general freight agent of the T. & O. C., to a Bee:

"There never was a time in the history of the road when there was so much freight moving and such a universal demand for cars. All possible available equipment has been pressed into service, but it doesn't begin to supply the demand."

The Movement of Cars.

The following from the Cleveland Plain Dealer shows the monthly statement of the Cleveland car association: For October 36,042 cars were handled, an increase of 3,630 cars over September. Of these 87 per cent. were released within the free time allowed, while in September only 83 per cent. were returned within the required time. The average detention per day was, by railroads .53; by shippers and consignees .95, making a total of 1.48. In September the average detention per day was, railroads .57, shippers and consignees .98; total 1.55. The total number of cars handled by the association since its organization, Nov. 13, 1889, was 709,789.

After the Scalpers.

The following circular has been issued by B. W. Wrenn, general passenger agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia road:

"You will please exercise care in putting impression of 'B. C.' punch in all tickets so as not to obliterate the form number, destination or any other punch mark that may be in the same, showing class on limit.

"This on account of the operation of some scalpers on our line who have been using a large 'B. C.' punch to cancel the impression of punch mark made in the tickets by the selling agent to indicate class, limit, etc.

"I would be glad if you co-operate with us in this matter by instructing your agents to exercise care in punching tickets reading over the line 'B. C.' so as not to interfere with selling agents punch mark.

"Yours Truly,
B. W. Wrenn,
"General Passenger and Ticket Agent."

C., J. & M. Matters.

The Lima Republican of yesterday has the following relative to the C., J. & M.:

At the sale of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw road at foreclosure, on the 6th of last month, the Reorganization Committee bid in two divisions, which extends from Cecil to Greenville, Ohio, a distance of eighty miles, was bid in by Messrs. Rice and Marble, the latter having been formerly president and general manager of the road.

Messrs. Rice and Marble put up $15,000 when they bid in the Central Division as a guarantee of good faith. The balance of the purchase price was to be paid within twenty days.

It is said that the gentlemen have failed to make good and have forfeited the $15,000 they paid in on the day of sale.

The reorganization committee of the bid for the Central Division, but Messrs. Rice and Marble raised that bid 100 per cent. and secured it.

The reorganization committee wanted the entire property, as arrangements had been made to lease it to the C. H. & D. people, but the C. H. & D. would not want the property without the Central Division. As Rice and Marble have failed to pay the purchase money the Central Division will be again put up for sale and the reorganization committee will secure it this time.

New City Passenger Agent.

Charles W. Zell has been appointed city passenger agent at Cincinnati by General Passenger Agent McCarty, of the B. & O., vice W. G. Lodwick, resigned. Mr. Zell was formerly agent of the Norfolk & Western at Portsmouth, Ohio.

Elected Officers.

Directors of four of the lines of the Big Four met yesterday and elected the following officers: E. Ingalls, president; E. F. Osborn, vice president; J. C. Davie, secretary, and Geo. S. Russell, treasurer.

Piped the Wrong Man.

The following from the Indianapolis News will be read with interest especially by the friends and acquaintances of Ed Hicks, the hero. "Deacon" Ed Hicks is traveling passenger agent of the Lake Erie & Western, and in his business is a "right smooth citizen" and an all around hustler, but one of the homeliest men on two continents. Yesterday he was at the pension office and started from there to the general offices at Noble street. One of the city detectives who had not the honor of Mr. Hicks' acquaintance shadowed him. Near Pennsylvania street the detective met a News reporter.

"See that duck, there?" said the sleuth, nodding toward the "Deacon," who was investing a portion of his salary in French chewing candy. "I've been following him for 15 minutes, and I think he is a pretty slick citizen. I want to see the gang he runs with."

"He is a slick one," answered the reporter. "That's Ed Hicks, of the Lake Erie & Western ticket department. Just keep your eye on him and you will see him associate with H. C. Parker, Charley Daly, 'Mons.' Webb, Col. Sellers and a lot more of the L. E. & W. people."

"Say, have a cigar, and don't give me away on this," gasped the detective as he lost himself in the crowd.

Now Comes the Q. & C.

Following the action of the Louisville & Nashville, in offering commissions on southern business, it is reported that the Queen & Crescent is mailing "the boys" circulars on the sly, offering commissions on all business sent over its lines, to the sunny south. Who comes next?

C., H. V. & T. Finances.

The following comparative statement shows the earnings of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo road for the month of October:

1891	$338,981 57
1890	316,682 74
Increase	22,298 83

The earnings for 10 months of this year were $2,694,972 57, compared with $2,465,162 88, an increase of $229,809 69.

Divided Up the Work.

A. S. Dodge, general freight agent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road, has made the following division of the freight traffic: C. Haile, assistant general freight agent, Sedalia, Mo., will have direct charge of all Missouri business in addition to freight originating off the line except such business as originates in Kansas; J. W. Allen, assistant general freight agent, Parsons, Ks., will have direct charge of all Kansas business in addition to freight originating off the line, except such business as originates in Kansas. The general freight agent can be addressed at either Sedalia or Parsons.

Plenty of Business on Hand.

The monthly meeting of the freight department of the Central Traffic association will be held. The following business is scheduled for discussion: Adjustment of division rates on Missouri river traffic for junctions between Chicago and St. Louis; proportional rates on export flour from St. Louis and their adoption from Mississippi river points; differential rates on traffic to Savannah via Atlantic seaboard points; revision of the percentage basis of eastbound rates; application of the transportation committee of the world's fair, that exhibits from foreign countries be charged at half rates in both directions.

Elected Directors and Officers

The stockholders of the Wisconsin Central, at their annual meeting Thursday, elected directors as follows:

Edwin H. Abbott, Cambridge, Mass.; Frederick Abbott, Milwaukee; Howard Morris, Milwaukee; S. R. Ainslee, Chicago; Henry F. Spencer, Boston; Eustace C. Fitz, Boston; John F. Anderson, Boston; Jeremiah Smith, Boston; Newland G. Hazard, Pencedale, R. I.; William L. Bull, New York; George W. Johnson, Brookfield, Mass.

The following officers were then elected: Edwin H. Abbott, president and treasurer; Frederick Abbott, vice-president and assistant treasurer at Milwaukee; Howard Morris, assistant secretary and general solicitor; Henry F. Spencer, asistant secretary.

Cinders.

The Illinois Central has renewed its contract with the Pullman company for 25 years.

A. J. Robinson, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago & Alton, is in the city to-day.

The Pittsburg, Akron & Western has issued a neat morrocco bound passenger tariff, in effect October 1.

C. S. Belknap, general passenger agent of the Wheeling & Lake Erie at Massillon, is in the city to-day.

A. Schantz, general passenger agent of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company, is in the city to-day.

A number of B. & O. shops that have been running on half time have been ordered to run full time at once.

T. W. Peeler, general superintendent of the T. & O. C., returned last evening from a business trip to Charleston, W. Va.

E. T. Affleck, division freight agent of the B. & O., is lying critically ill at his home in Columbus, of congestion of the liver.

D. D. Ahearn has been appointed contracting freight agent of the Louisville & Nashville at St. Louis, vice Edwin Sample, resigned.

Eighty-four of the leading roads of the country earned in the third week in October $9,275,021, an increase over last year of $871,512.

In two days of last week the B. & O. made charters for the exportation of 2,500,000 bushels of grain to Europe from Boston.

Beginning December 1 the Wagner company will turn out of its shops 16 new sleepers a month; this is in preparation for the world's fair business.

The Ohio & Mississippi road earned $410,070.80 during the month of October, against $396,468.05 for the same period last year, an increase of $13,602.75.

The Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan, of the Big Four, shows $70,800.10 earned for the month of October, as against $55,307.58 for the same month of last year, an increase of $15,492.52.

Miss Townsley is a regularly ordained minister of the gospel.

TALKED AND ACTED LIKE A MAN.

The young man had been with the party some time and he finally rose to go. The others vetoed the proposition.

"Oh, sit down!" cried one.

"What do you want to break up the party for?" asked another.

"Be a good fellow," said a third.

Now that "Be a good fellow"—well, every man knows what that means. Every man has done something he did not want to do and ought not to have done for fear some one might think he was not a "good fellow."

The young man hesitated.

"No, I guess I had better go," he said at last."

"Nonsense! It's early yet!" protested one.

"Sit down! Sit down! We'll all be home before 12," added another.

The young man sat down, rested his arms on the table, and said:

"Well, I'll submit the case to you. You are talking of going to the theater or having a game of cards at the club, and you want me to be one of the party. Now, in a cosy little flat on the north side there's a little woman——"

"Children sick?" put in one of the party.

"No, there's only one and he's in good health.

"Wife sick?"

"No."

"O, well——"

"Wait a minute," interrupted the young man. "I'll leave it to you, but you must hear the case. This little woman is alone in the flat. The baby is in bed, and she is sitting there reading or sewing and listening to the steps of those passing the house. I left home at 9 o'clock this morning, and since then she has been alone with the baby. Now she hasn't even the baby to occupy her time."

He paused a moment to give them an opportunity to speak, but no one said a word. Then he said:

"Boys, if you think you want my company to-night more than she does I'll stay."

There was another pause, then one of the party took a sip of champagne and said:

"I'd rather you'd go home."

The others nodded their assent, and the young man said:

"I'd rather go."

It was some time later in the evening when one of the members of the party said:

"There's a man."

And every one knew whom he referred to.—Chicago Tribune.

RAIN-MAKING IN INDIA.

How Hindoo Fakirs Make Themselves Solid with Farmers.

Every country subject to drought has its its own peculiar method of supplicating for rain, and that in vogue in Kumaon in northern India is not the least curious of them. Last winter the season was a very dry one in Kumaon, and consequently there was a failure of the crops, with great scarcity in the district.

With the exception of a few showers, there were no winter rains, and that in a country where the population is almost wholly dependent upon grain as a means of subsistence meant a famine and starvation. In consequence of the drought a Hindoo fakir imposed a penance upon himself, and was suspended by his feet from a wooden beam.

In this means he was swung backwards and forwards for a considerable time by means of a rope attached to his body, and pulled by a fellow-saint.

Both men were plentifully bedaubed with cow-dung and ashes, and, save for a small cloth around the waist, were minus all clothing.

In such case, should rain fall within reasonable time after the penance, the fakir takes the entire credit for the relief to himself, and rises immensely in the estimation of the simple and credulous cultivator of the soil.

During the year ended June 30, 1891, there were carried by the 15 street railway companies of New York city, 430,853,133 passengers, who paid in fares $21,432,350. Of this vast army of travelers 201,202,518 were conveyed over the elevated roads. The total number of passengers injured during the year was 131, and 30 fatal casualties occurred.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a falat or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE MILLIONS OF CONSUMERS OF Tutt's Pills.

It gives Dr. Tutt pleasure to announce that he is now putting up a TINY LIVER PILL which is of exceedingly small size, yet retaining all the virtues of the larger ones. They are guaranteed purely vegetable. Both sizes of these pills are still issued. The exact size of TUTT'S TINY LIVER PILLS is shown in the border of this "ad."

A Remarkable Rescue.

PETERSBURG, IND., Nov. 27, 1889.

Dr. J. W. Bergen, City:

Dear Sir:—My son Charles, who has been sorely afflicted with asthma for ten years, never succeeded in getting any relief from anything until he used your asthma cure. He began to take your medicine about one year ago. He is well and hearty, and does not have an asthmatic symptom. I feel more grateful than words can express.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH STUBBLEFIELD,

BENSON OR BUST.

Foraker Must Be Elected Senator.

Alger Enters the Field with His Boodle

And the "Smelling Committee" is Now at Work.

A Nice Republican Fight on the Boards.

Foraker Will Reward the Michigan Lumber King by Turning the State Delegation Over to Him in the National Convention Next Spring.

Columbus, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Foraker's plan of campaign for the senatorship against John Sherman was exposed here to-day by a Michigan state official who has the closest relations with the Michigan lumber magnate and chronic aspirant for the presidency., Russell A. Alger. The plan as outlined to the Bee's correspondent reveals one of the deepest and darkest political deals ever entered into by any clique of political leaders in the history of Ohio.

The week preceding election Alger and Foraker met in Cincinnati, so the story goes, and the deal was consummated.

Foraker is certain of securing at least one-third of the republicans elected to the house and senate, but the necessary majority will have to be secured by other means. Foraker realized this fact early in the campaign and at once enlisted the services of the Michigan candidate for the presidency.

"Foraker will supply the brains and Alger the boodle," said the Bee's informant. "The plan is for Foraker to secure the senatorship at any cost and Alger will foot the bill. Then Foraker in return will guarantee to secure for Alger the Ohio delegation to the national convention next spring." "But will not this go back on the Blaine-Alger combination?"

"Alger will not have the second place. He wants first or none. He proposes if necessary to let Blaine run the race for the nomination, but he feels assured Blaine will not dare antagonize Harrison, and Harrison, of course, naturally wants a second term. That there will be a divided delegation from nearly all the northern and western states is certain, and Alger at the supreme moment will be trotted out as the dark horse and with solid delegations from Ohio and Michigan his nomination will go through whooping. "This is the program, but just whether or not it can be carried out remains to be seen."

"Will Foraker have much of a following in Ohio in this fight?"

"Will he? Well, I should say he will. He has got two of the leading papers booming him already. The Commercial Gazette and Columbus Dispatch are in the deal and the Toledo Blade has pledged him its unswerving support. The Commercial Gazette and Blade support him for similar reasons. Both have personal grievances against John Sherman and they have been after his scalp for years. The opposition of the Columbus paper is also largely personal."

"Has Sherman heard of the scheme?"

"Yes, Jake Donaldson learned of it the first the night of election and posted off at once to Mansfield, where he notified the senator, who has been greatly troubled over Alger's alleged conspiracy to down him. He does not care for Foraker. He knows Foraker capable of any meanness. Jake Donaldson says if Foraker goes to the senate he (Foraker) will never stop at anything less than the dictatorship of the United States. Jacob was a badly rattled man when he left here for Mansfield."

The situation is growing decidedly interesting, and one of the hottest political fights ever known in Ohio has been inaugurated.

Sherman has the advantage over Foraker in point of generalship, but John does hate to loose his purse strings. Foraker is a fighter and will have boodle galore. So it is a pretty fight from a democratic standpoint all along the line.

COLLECTOR WALDORF

Goes to Letter Writing for Senator Sherman.

This morning's Cleveland Leader has the following communication from Collector Waldorf, of Toledo, in which he assumes to know considerable about the members-elect from Northwestern Ohio. Here is the letter:

Unseemly haste characterizes the opening of the senatorial fight by over-enthusiastic friends of ex-Governor Foraker. They appear to have also adopted the style of the late John G. Thompson in "claiming everything with confidence."

It is stated that the Lucas county legislative delegation, the two senators from the Toledo district, and the seven or eight additional republican members-elect from Northwestern Ohio, are, with one exception, for the election of Foraker, according to the aforesaid enthusiastic claimants. Unanswered, the belief might go over the state that this is true. It is very far from the truth. The writer has not the authority to speak for any of the several gentleman elected, but knows that the aforesaid claims are not founded upon fact. He further knows that in the event of Senator Sherman signifying his wish to succeed himself that a very large majority of these gentlemen elected will support him.

It is believed that the rank and file of the republican party of Northwestern Ohio fully appreciate the character and unswavering fidelity of Senator Sherman. They regard him as worthy of anything within the gift of the party. They are not disposed to lose him in the prime of his usefulness and deem it the least that can be done to return him to the senate.

Senator Sherman will not fail of re-election if the members of Northwestern Ohio have the deciding vote.

WERDEN WITH ST. LOUIS.

Toledo's Big First Baseman Has Signed With Von Der Ahe.

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Perry Werden to-day signed a contract to play first base for the St. Louis Brown's next season. The big first baseman was equal to the occasion and had a clause inserted in his contract so that Von Der Ahe cannot release him until the end of the season and cannot fine him, which is the only way a man can play ball for Von Der Ahe and get his salary.

THOSE CAMPAIGN CIRCULARS.

Mr. Harry Dowling Feels Strongly in the Matter, and Makes a Statement.

To the Editor: In the name of fair dealing I respectfully ask space in your journal to set myself right before those of your readers who have not already seen my prompt and positive denial of all responsibility for the circulars which were issued just before the election, by persons willing to resort to any means, however disreputable and villainous, to secure my defeat, and which circulars, evidently (as their author or authors intended they should) induced many well meaning persons to vote against me, for the office of sheriff.

I am a young man, born and raised in Toledo, and whatever reputation I have is as an open book to this community. There is nothing for concealment. My future life, so far as I now know, will be spent in this city, and I cannot afford to have any blight upon my reputation as an honest and fair-minded citizen, for my reputation is my best stock in trade, something which I hope will never deserve the censure of my fellow citizens.

The impression sought to be conveyed in the circulars referred to that I am opposed to the public schools, to which I myself owe so much, is too absurd for consideration. Those who know me best, know that I am free from prejudices and liberal in all things, finding no fault with anyone for worshiping God as his own conscience dictates. I only ask that I may be accorded the same right without being set up as a target for ridicule by those who have banded themselves together for the express purpose of making a cowardly warfare upon a large and respectable portion of my fellow-citizens.

Now, with this premise, Mr. Editor, I desire to repeat that I had nothing whatever to do with suggesting, printing or distributing either of the circulars attributed to me or my friends. Furthermore, my friends were not concerned with any part of the said publication or circulation. Neither was the committee of my party, having charge of the campaign, in any manner responsible, and I do not believe the committee representing the republican party had anything to do with it. No sane man would be a party to the preparation or distribution of circulars which could have no other effect than to bring overwhelming defeat and deserved disgrace upon himself. In justice I ask to be set aright. In fairness between man and man I ask those whose credulity during the heat of the campaign was taken advantage of to such an extent that they became the instruments in the hands of wicked and designing men for the circulation of false and malicious reports, to undo so far as possible the wrong they have done me. HARRY S. DOWLING.

Toledo, Nov. 7, 1891.

Y. P. S. C. E. ENTERTAINMENT.

The mingling of the beautiful and the burlesque, the graceful and the grotesque, was never better accomplished than at the exhibition last evening, by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Baptist church, of "Mysteries, Statuary and Curiosities." The rooms were beautifully decorated with plants, flowers, stands artistically draped, etc., and upon the stands were rare art volumes, pictures and other art exhibitions. The interest centered, however, in the mysteries of the exhibition, as when "The Steamer on the Rocks," was shown up, a common tin steamer, such as housewives use, sitting on two rocks. One rock on a big letter "C" was the "Lone Rock by the Sea." The "Bust of a Boy" was a pair of knickerbockers set in a frame, the knickerbockers being—well, in the condition mothers usually find them in. Everybody had a delightful time, and the entertainment was a pronounced success.

NATIONAL SALUTATIONS.

Different nations have very different phrases for familiar greeting. Here are some of them:

When one Englishman meets another, the usual inquiry is, "How do you do?" The Frenchman would ask, "How do you carry yourself?" the Italian, "How do you stand?" How do you find yourself?" is the German interrogation; "How do you fare?" is the Dutch; "How do you perspire," asks the Egyptian; the Chinaman wants to know "How is your stomach" "Have you eaten your rice?" the Pole, "How do you have yourself?" the Russian, "How do you live on?" while the Persian salutation is "May thy shadow never be less."

TO THE BENEVOLENT.

Cold weather is here and colder coming and many of the poor of all ages from the babe in the cradle to the old man and woman will suffer, not always by reason of any fault of theirs, surely never of the children, and, as in the past, I come to you again in their behalf for such clothing, including bed clothing, as you can well spare. All contributions can be left at Adams Street Mission, but if not convenient to bring them here, if you send me your address I will send for them. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do you even so to them."

P. S. SLEVIN.
City Missionary.

LOOKING AFTER STOLEN GOODS.

The sheriff from Hillsdale, Mich., was in the city to-day and identified some of the goods found on Theodore White, as having been taken from a store that was burglarized in that town. It will be remembered that White was yesterday sent to the workhouse as a suspicious person. W. E. Kellogg, a merchant of Wakeman, O., was also here looking over the goods to see if any of the stuff came from his store which was recently robbed.

HOUSE RAIDED.

The house at 427 Superior street occupied by R. A. Martin was raided by Detectives Duffy and Gilroy last night for being a house of ill fame. Martin, another man giving the name of S. W. Luscomb, with Jennie McDonald and Jennie Bowman, were arrested. Luscomb and the McDonald woman forfeited their bail this morning, and the cases against the other two were continued until Tuesday.

O'FALLON DEAD.

Thomas O'Fallon, the man who left the gas turned on in Volk's restaurant, died at the residence of his brother last evening. He never regained consciousness after being discovered, in spite of the efforts of several physicians.

Mrs. Jennie Balfe Baird, who is the guest of Ninth ward friends, returns to her home, Jacksonville, Florida, next week.

The anniversary of the Holland, O., Ys, will be duly celebrated at the home of E. C. Olmstead, next Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitch Dewey and family have returned from a Michigan trip, and have taken apartments at the Madison for the winter.

Miss Maggie Shipman, of Weston, who possesses a beautiful soprano voice, has arrived in the city to study with Mr. Ervin Singer.

Mrs. Frank Meekes, of Lyons, O., is visiting her brother, L. M. Trowbridge and sister, Miss Ada Trowbridge, of 427 Huron street.

Mrs. M. C. Moore and Master Edward are nicely located at "The Leland," Marietta, Ga., where Master Ed. is greatly improved in health.

Mr. T. P. Townsend, inspector of the U. S. weather bureau, left the city yesterday ater a three days' inspection of the local weather office.

Mr. F. B. Courter, of the Marysville, O., Journal, was in the city to-day, inspecting the Bee building and the wonderful type machines.

Gospel meeting will be conducted at the Third Congregational church, commencing Sunday morning, November 8, by the evangelist ,L. P. Rowland.

Miss Mary Chase, one of Elvin Singer's pupils, will sing an offertory, "Come Unto Me," at the First Presbyterian church to-morrow morning.

A brand new baby girl made its appearance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Weed last Wednesday. Mrs. Weed and daughter are doing nicely.

Rev. A. J. Fish and wife, of this city, drove through from Lima yesterday. They report the roads as being excellent, and the trip proved to be a very pleasant one.

Mrs. C. A. Harley returned home Wednesday after a summer's visit with her parents in the west. Her many friends welcome her to Toledo again.

Mrs. Myrie Laufkoetter and Miss Bessie Maher gave a delightful surprise party Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served, and a general good time enjoyed.

Miss Janet C. Lewis is home from Cincinnati. After completing the pastel-crayon portraits of the Major children she returns to studio work in New York.

Mrs. L. H. Trowbridge, of Delta, visited her son, L. M., and Miss Ada, of 427 Huron street, Wednesday and Thursday, went to Columbus to visit her sister, Mrs. Tobe Mosure.

Dr. A. E. Karsner, of St. Joe, Mo., but who was formerly a well-known resident of Toledo, spent yesterday in the city, on his return home. he had been at Florida, Henry county, to attend his father's funeral.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Claudia Murphy and others will talk on woman suffrage at the Third Street M. E. church, and on Thursday evening Mrs. Sears, of Bowling Green, will speak at the E. M. church. Toledo Ys are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Mrs. Fannie Segur Foster, of Dallas, Tex., has been entertaining a famous southern beauty whose portrait is among those under title in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. The lady is Miss Gaines, daughter of a supreme judge of the Lone Star state.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Baumgardner, Mrs. G. G. Hadley, Mrs. John Coghlin, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ketcham, Mrs. Al. Baumgardner and Mrs. Miller are all enjoying New York City. The above party, together with Mr. G. G. Hadley, who was then in New York City, attended the Casino on Monday evening to hear Mr. Bassett sing.

Last evening the Misses Coldham entertained about sixty of their friends in honor of the Misses Thompson and Sawyer. The house was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums. The young people played "Hearts" and prizes were awarded to the Misses Bertha Baker, Kittie Baker, Alice Campbell, Alice Baker and Mr. Ed Witker. Among the guests were: Misses Thomson, Sawyer, Annie Reedan, Bessie Cummings, Daniels, Morehouse, Hudson, Gosline, Dodge, Franklin, Cushing, and Messrs. Perry, Cushing, West, Witker, Barnard of Toronto, Arnold Slack, Gilsome and Kinnan.

The ladies of the Fifth Presbyterian church gave an experience social last evening at Baumgardner's hall which was very interesting. Each lady earned a dollar, and either illustrated or told of the manner in which it was earned. The following program was rendered: Recitation, Miss Nellie Hodskiss; coal solo, Miss Aggie Burnham; illustration of how Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Bidwell, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Provost toiled for their dollar; Mrs. Logee then represented that she stole the dollar from her husband; solo, Mr Jewett; mowing grass, illustrated by Mrs. Williston; duet vocal, by Misses Williston and Noteman; a scene, called a tea party, where Mesdames Cook, Van Buren, Van Heller, Richmond, Benedict, Lees, Frailie, Hume and Lord gave their experiences in a funny manner. The church is $50 ahead on account of this social.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Five lots on Robinwood avenue were disposed of this week by Turley & Co.

The Episcopal church at Auburndale is nearly completed and services will be held there one week from to-morrow.

Marriage licenses were issued to-day to Frank J. Collard and Estella Hadley and Herman C. Nehls and Minnie Hayward.

The new Northwestern line will be connected at South street to-day. The supply will amount to 2,000,000 cubic feet per day.

Frank Comiski, living on Central avenue, reports to the police that he was robbed of $85 in money last night, the same being taken out of his bureau drawer.

The case of August W. Eschedon against the Lake Shore, was taken up for hearing to-day in Judge Pugsley's court. It is an action to recover $10,000 damages for personal injury.

The schooner yacht Speranza has been sold to Ogden D. Williams, of Philadelphia. She was built in 1884 for H. W. Collender, and has since been sailed on the lakes. George H. Ketcham was her last owner.

Henry Ames, indicted on the charge of burglary and larceny, appeared in criminal court this morning and plead guilty to petit larceny. He was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse and fined $50 and costs.

A motion for the appointment of a receiver was filed to-day in common pleas court in the case of Rudolph Thiele against Frederick S. Drover. This case was filed a short time ago to recover property alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed to the defendant.

VALUABLE STALLION DEAD.

Norwalk, Nov. 7.—(Special)—"Noble Harold," one of the most noted trotting stallions in Ohio, valued at several thousand dollars, owned by W. P. Noble, of Ripley, this county, died suddenly yesterday of inflammation of the bowels. Everything possible was done for the animal, three noted veterinary surgeons from Cleveland being called. "Noble Harold" was half brother of Maud S., was in the 2:30 list for 1891, and had a 3-years' old colt in same list.

JAMES DEMARS DEAD.

Norwalk, Nov. 7.—(Special)—James Demars, superintendent of bridges for the Wheeling & Lake Erie road, died this morning at 7:30 o'clock at his home in this city, after a month's illness.

THE PARK QUESTION.

The vote for the issue of bonds for park purposes was canvassed to-day, and resulted as follows: Yes, 3,009; no, 1,737; majority for, 1,272. This carries the proposition, as it requires only a majority of the votes cast.

TOLD HIS BROTHER.

A lively demonstration of canine reasoning occurred at Keeler last week. A small brown dog, with a most intelligent head, familiarly known to the lower country residents as Barney, has been in the habit, for a long time past, of following the Darwin stage, never missing a trip. Changing the drivers makes no difference; he clings to the route and not the man. On off days he occasionally takes a visit to Cerro Gordo, and doing so recently was set upon and whipped by a dog there. Attached to Boland's store at Keeler is a big strong dog that has quite a reputation as a scrapper. On the morning of the next Cerro Gerdo trip Barney was noticed playing with the big dog. When the stage started Barney followed, and as his companion seemed averse to going, he would run back and play, and then forward, and finally persuaded the John L. Sullivan dog into going too. Arriving at Cerro Gordo the little dog made a dash at his former vanquisher, John "stood it," and the bully was soundly thrashed. Barney wore a broad grin of satisfaction when he returned to Keeler, but he does not visit Cerro Gerdo any more.—Ingo (Col.) Independent.

PIE EATING.

The amount of food consumed in some of these downtown lunch rooms every day is something enormous. It seems all the more incredible from the fact that it goes up in small lunches.

One place consumes on an average for the midday lunch to business men 1,500 sandwiches, 15 cans of milk, 40 dozen pastry of various kinds, 85 pies and 1,500 to 2,000 oysters served in every style.

Besides these some 800 persons get hot dishes of almost every description at the lunch counter. Gracious heavens! Eighty-five pies represents 340 pie eaters in one resort among hundreds of the kind.

This is not considered a great place for pies either. What a pity that Superintendent of the Census Porter did not include in his stupendous compilaration of facts and fancies some statistics about pies.

A carefully arranged tabular statement of pie and pie eaters of the United States would be of more use to the health authorities and more interesting to the general readers than a monologue on swamp land.

A ROYAL DRESSMAKER.

The Princess Christian, whose daughter, the Princess Louise, was married last July, designed the brocade which formed the gown she wore at the wedding. It showed the rose of England, the shamrock of Ireland, and the thistle of Scotland embossed upon it, and was woven in English looms.

She also designed and presented to her daughter a very lovely brocade, which shows clusters of lilies, tied with blue ribbons, on a pale creamy ground.

Certainly when one realizes that Princess Christian is an admirable mother and wife, that she fulfills her duties at home and in society, and yet finds time for other work, it is suggestive that it would not be a bad thing if some women who do not wear titles would imitate her example.—Ladies' Home Journal.

MOUND RELICS.

Twenty-one Indian skeletons were taken from an Indian mound at Woodstock, Va., recently, fifteen of which were packed closely in the middle of the mound. From their position it was evident that the skeletons had been deposited in this place some time after death. They were covered with several wagon loads of limestone rock, which had evidently been brought from a ravine several hundred yards distant. The only relics found were two slate gorgets or neck ornaments and one bone needle, about six inches in length. From the character of the mound and the relics, it is supposed that this mound was made by some of the Six Nations. Very few mounds are found in this section of the state.

HUGH PRICE HUGHS.

No personality came before the Ecumenical Conference that excited greater interest than that of Hugh Price Hughs, the great London evangelist. The stories of the wonderful work he has accomplished as the superintendent of those missionary movements that have wrought such results in the midst of the depraved masses of London, made every one anxious to see and hear him.

He is a man of medium height and size. His eyes are close set under heavy eyebrows, and look out sharply from behind a pair of eye-glasses that sit astride his nose. A full face of beard cut close adorns his lower face. His square bald head projecting back of his shoulders shows that he is a fighter. His manner of speech indicates that he is a perfect volcano of pent-up forces to which he can give vent when the occasion requires. He is aggressive to the point of pugnacity. He showed in the Ecumenical Conference that he feared to grapple no one. He pitched savagely into the paper of Dr. Waller, Secretary of the Wesleyan Methodist conference, for what he deemed the incompleteness of Dr. Waller's statistics of Methodism in England. He fearlessly tackled Dr. Buckley, the controversial prize-fighter of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and what is more he downed him, to. It was very clear why he has become such a terror to all opponents in England, until, as W. T. Stead recently wrote, he has come to be regarded as a "Day of judgement in breeches."—The Methodist Recorder.

BLUE MONDAY IN SCOTLAND.

A pretty description of "Blue Monday" occurrences in Scotland is given by an English paper. As we neared the little croft some women were washing in the stream. They had brought their tubs and clothes to the river's bank to wash.

They were bronzed, heavily looking Scotch lassies, and wore pretty red or pink bodices, the sleeves of which were well tucked up.

They filled their tubs with water, and in went the clothes; but the women did not kneel down to wash them; they first made a good lather of soap, and gathering up their short skirts between their legs they stepped into the tubs.

In the usual Highland fashion they were shoeless, and there they stood in the tubs and danced on the clothes until they were clean.

It was a quaint scene—the pretty coloring of the women, the rocky and green background, with the deep blue Sutherlandshire hills beyond.

OVERRUN BY CARP.

The introduction of carp into the water near San Francisco by the California fish commissioners has not been productive of good results. The newcomers are called water hogs, and are considered a scourge in many ways. The demand for them in the market did not last long, and when the demand ceased the breeders quit the industry and turned the fish into the nearest water courses, where they flourished, and thence spread until now they infest all of the tide sloughs adjacent to San Francisco bay. Winter floods carried them to the marshes and left them landlocked. They have multiplied so largely that they may spoil the sport for the members of shooting clubs that have preserves of natural water and planted feed for ducks in their ponds. The carp have bred by thousands in the ponds and have almost destroyed the grasses. In the Suisun marsh myriads of fish have destroyed the feed. In the swamps up the bay and along the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers vast shoals of carp may be seen. One club is considering the advisability of draining its ponds and keeping them dry for a season to kill the fish.

AUTOMATIC PARCEL DELIVERER FOR FLATS.

An ingenious contrivance for distributing letters or parcels to the different flats of large buildings has been invented by a German mechanic. A large collection box, provided with compartments to correspond to the various flats, is fixed in the basement. The placing of letters or parcels in this box established electrical communication with the story, the effect being to release a stream of water which fills a cylinder. As soon as the cylinder fills it descends, causing the box in the basement to ascend at the same time, and by a simple mechanical contrivance to discharge the contents of the various compartments into the receiving boxes of the various floors. When the collecting box has reached the top story, the cylinder, by emptying itself, permits of its return to the basement.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

A project has been started in Pueblo, Col., for the erection of an electric smelting plant to cost $500,000, for the reduction by electricity of dry and refractory ores.

A new resistance metal resembles ordinary copper wire on the outside, with a pinkish white tinge at the point of fracture. It is very strong without losing much ductility.

If a company can get control of water power of 10,000-horse power at Barnett Shoals it proposes to run by electricity the machinery in every manufactory in Athens, Ga.

For preventing the vibration of the filaments in incandescent lamps in electric railway cars a new lamp has the loop of the filament held by a short loop of carbon sealed to the top of the butts.

An elevator that is operated by electricity on a new principle has been tested in Brooklyn. It is controlled by a handle within the car, and the motion can be increased or decreased in speed and reversed.

It has been estimated that about 350 electric railways are in operation, or actually under construction in this country at the present time. The mileage is probably about 2,000, and the number of cars about 6,500.

A new electric soldering iron has a wire forming part of an electric circuit, wound in concentric helices, which are separated by strips of insulating material, with an inclosing casing and a soldering point in close proximity, so as to be heated thereby.

A core for smoothing irons, to be heated by electricity, is one of the new things in combination with a wire forming part of an electric circuit and wound in a heating coil or spiral. The core is solid and of insulating material, which is grooved to receive the wire and has a passage permitting the return of the wire to the end of the core at the beginning of the winding.

Dobrowolsky, the inventor and designer of the electrical transmission plant at the international electro-technical exhibition at Frankfort, is willing to attempt to transmit either 1,000 or 5,000 horse power from Niagara to Chicago. The distance being about 500 miles, between 40,000 and 50,000 volts will be required. Of 5,000 horse power operated at Niagara about 3,000 could be utilized at Chicago.

At the central power station of the West End Railway company in Boston, the boilers are said to have a capacity of 24,000 horse power. The chimney is 252 feet in height, with a cast iron cap weighing 8,400 pounds. Each of the 13 triple-expansion engines of 2,000 horse power will have a fly wheel 28 feet in diameter, 10 feet and 7 inch face, and weighing 80 tons. Each engine will run four generators. Two engines have been started.

MODERN SAMPSONS.

Sampson McCann, an Irishman, breaks silver dollars between his fingers and chains capable of sustaining 6,000 pounds.

Eugene Sandow, a German, only weighs 202 pounds, but is credited with having put up a 312-pound dumbell with one hand.

Paris was recently astounded by the feats of Apollon, a Frenchman, who weighs 250 pounds, and who can lift three horses, hold 100 pounds out at arm's length, and play catch with a 160-pound weight.

Irving Montgomery, an American, breaks strong chains and straps with his hands and by chest expansion with remarkable ease. His exhibition partner, Cyclops, is a giant who thinks nothing of running about with three big men and a 150-pound dumbell or breaking a heavy iron ring by the contraction of his biceps.

Louis Cyr, a French Canadian, is six feet high, weighs 300 pounds, and has lifted 4,000 pounds of pigiron with his hands and back and without using harness. Shouldering a 300-pound barrel of cement with one hand, lifting 516 pounds with one finger, balancing his wife upon his chin, and raising with his back a platform holding a 232-pound dumbell and 20 men (aggregate weight 3,337 pounds) are among his everyday feats.

"COOKED HIS GOOSE."

How a Wise Young Man Got the Best of His Rival.

It was night, sweet, delicious night, the crisp, clear, moonlit October night of the temperate zone, one of those nights on which all the poetry in a man's and woman's nature rises to the surface, and on which there is naught but love and calm delight in the heart, says the New York Press.

It was, therefore, strange to behold a young couple facing each other and regarding each other with looks so cold and chilling that an iceberg would have seemed like a furnace in their vicinity.

"I know why you wish me to leave you," he said in sharp and metallic tones, each syllable of which seemed to fall from his lips with a click.

"Why?" she asked with a toss of her queenly head.

"Because," he hissed, "because you expect a visit from my rival."

"What if I do?" she said. Then, throwing a colder glitter into her eyes than had previously illumined them, she added, "Perhaps he loves me better than you do."

"Oh, he loves you," laughed the youth, sardonically; "without doubt he loves you, for I've heard him praising you."

"Heard him praising me?" The cold glitter left her eyes. "When did he say?"

"He said you were pretty—yes, pretty. I do not seek to hide the fact from you."

"He said I was pretty?"

"Yes, he said you were pretty—almost as pretty as your friend, Miss Somely."

Her face became deathly white.

"Almost as pretty as Miss Somely!" she repeated mechanically.

She was silent while you could have counted 20, or perhaps 21.

Then she said:

"Hadn't we better go in, John, instead of standing out here at the garden gate?"

And as they passed out of the moonlight into the house, he said softly to himself:

"I've cooked his goose!"

TOLEDO, OHIO, NOVEMBER 7, 1891.

Tom Reed declares for McKinley in 1892. Anything to beat Tom's friend Blaine of Maine.

Iowa's vote for 1891 is the largest ever cast in the state and overwhelmingly democratic.

The impression grows that eastern democrats did not render their Ohio brethren material aid because they feared Campbell as a presidential possibility.

Mr. Flickinger can go to congress if he rightly fixes the district. That's the place for him. He's too big a statesman for the Ohio house of representatives.

The last time the republicans elected senators from this district—Geyser and Carlin—Toledo was entirely neglected and ignored. We hope either Rorick or McConica will do better.

The manly card which Harry Dowling prints to-day ought to put to blush the men who attacked his good name and character during the recent campaign in Lucas county.

And now, Gov. McKinley says "the people are tired of tariff agitation." He and his republican conferees are tired of it but they will be more weary before the campaign of '92 is over.

Republican organs, saying that the vote of Pennsylvania shows that "the sins of individuals are not to be visited upon the party" gives adverse indorsement to President Harrison's friend Matt Quay.

The nation saved Ohio. Would that she had saved New York.—New York Mail and Express.

A very neat way of alluding to the barrel which the tariff barons of other states rolled into Ohio to help McKinley.

Our Columbus special to-day discloses the Foraker plan of working the senatorial racket. Gen. Alger has formed a combination with Foraker by which the two are to crusade against John Sherman, and in return the Ohio delegation in the next national republican convention will support Alger for president. A great scheme they have concocted to defeat Sherman.

One of the gratifying after-election reports is the news of the election of Judge Sutphen, of Defiance. An unfortunate fight was made upon him and his defeat was announced on Wednesday and yesterday. The official canvass of the votes gives him the election by eleven votes. He is one of the best judges in the state and he is an honor to the bench of northwestern Ohio.

Word comes from Piqua that Hon. J. F. McKinney is dying. An ex-congressman of ability and influence, the chairman of the state executive committee in 1880 and 1881, he was a forceful leader of Ohio democrats, yet how few present political workers know Frank McKinney. And so it is with the great majority who flash across the politics of a very fast living age. Count on your fingers the present congressmen whom you can call by name and you will be surprised how few have a national reputation. And the best of them soon drop from remembrance after they have retired from public life.

President Da Fonseca, of the short-winded republic of Brazil, has seen fit to proclaim himself dictator of his country. The hostility between president and congress was irreconcilable and seeing that revolution was imminent, Fonseca thought it best to get in ahead. It is reported that Fonseca is afflicted with an incurable disease, and the fact becoming known intrigues among ambitious ones to succeed to his place precipitated the coup d' etat of the president. The Dom Pedro party is also active. The dethroned emperor may yet see Brazil again. It is one thing to proclaim a republic and another thing to maintain it with a population that know not the first principles of democracy.

We are just betwixt and between in Ohio. The St. Louis Republic, democrat, says Ohio democrats lost because they did not advocate free silver, while the Chicago Herald, also democrat, says Ohio democrats lost because they did advocate free silver. These are two brotherly opinions of a great party which lost on Tuesday, but which is ready again to give battle to the republican party. Since 1853 we have carried Ohio just six times, four for governor and two for secretary of state. Persons would think a party would become discouraged with so many reverses, but they know not the Buckeye democracy who think of discouragement. Our numbers grow year by year, though the republicans also increase, and generally keep a little ahead of us. It would better become the carping critics on the outside of our borders to say kind words of encouragement, instead of jabbing the half million Ohio democrats when they go to the front of politics for a day. And if kind words can not be said the grumblers and fault-finders would better keep still. Ohio democrats are all right.

The St. Louis Republic has commissioned Mr. Schoenhof, a man who has studied the question in both hemispheres to prepare for it a series of papers on wages, and their connection, if any, with tariff legislation in different countries. In the last paper presented, some comparisons are made which the Bee quotes, not that it believes they prove anything for or against a tariff as it relates to the labor wage, but to enlighten those readers who hear the cry against England and her "pauper labor" with small understanding of how much or how little it means. The differences of wages paid mechanics, day laborers and workers in unprotected industries for the two countries are quoted. This little table shows how the schedule in a highly protected industry runs:

Wage rate to mule spinners:

No. of Yarn.	Fall River, (U. S.) Cents.	Rochdale (Eng.) Cents.
20	0.45	0.59
28	0.64	0.61
32	0.72	0.73 3-5
40	0.98	1.00
46	1.14	1.12
50	1.29	1.35

Mule spinning is all male labor. Throstle spinning is done by girls, but, while in England one girl attends four sides of 144 spindles, in America one girl supervises as many as eight sides of 120 spindles each, 576 spindles against 960 spindles.

It is explained that while figures and rulings vary for different localities, these rates obtained at the Rochdale mill by the writer are the average paid in England for this class of work, and the Fall River figures are furnished by the Fall River, Mass., mule spinners union. So the high tariff protection afforded the Fall River mills doesn't reach down to the mule spinners at all, but it does reach into the pockets of the consumers of their goods.

The New York Herald takes the singular position, since the election, that to hold Tammany in check the democrats "must insist on the nomination of some western man for president." Continuing the Herald says:

It would be bad politics for the democrats next year to choose any man who hails from New York, city or state, because he will inevitably be considered a Tammany man. The impression prevails in the west that every New York democrat is in affiliation with Tammany Hall, and whether that impression is correct or not it will have its effect on the elections. The party can avoid such a handicap by looking to the west, which produces men of the broadest statesmanship, for their candidate.

The Herald's logic is bad. It assumes that the whole country is absorbed by Tammany, whereas the people outside of New York know of it by tradition and are reminded of its work as the metropolitan papers magnify its quarrels and triumphs. The general opinion is that Grover Cleveland is the one man who stands stronger before the country since the elections this week, and it is of little consequence to the democrats of the United States whether he hails from New York, or Buzzards Bay. He is the big brainy leader whom the democrats expect to lead them to victory in 1892. The Herald should get in line with popular opinion.

SENATOR BRICE'S SEAT.

Of all the nonsense of gibbering political imbeciles the stuff and talk about the United States senate refusing to seat Senator-elect Brice is the most idiotic. The Commercial Gazette, which is erratic in its leading, assumes the championship of this insanity, while such top-lofty weaklings as the evening organ of republicanism in Toledo plays second fiddle to the unharmonious strain. In refreshing contrast to this idiocy is the expression of that hard-hitting and honest republican editor, Hon. I. F. Mack, of the Sandusky Register, who answers a correspondent on the subject of rejecting Mr. Brice's certificate after this fashion:

Calvin S. Brice was elected a senator, to succeed Mr. Payne, in the usual manner by a democratic legislature constitutionally empowered to elect Mr. Payne's successor. We know of no reason why he cannot legally take the oath of office. We have no information on which to base the theory or opinion that it would be perjury for him to take it.

We presume that our correspondent refers to the talk in regard to the legal residence of Mr. Brice. We have never taken stock in that objection to Mr. Brice. He spends most of his time in New York because his business interests require him to be there, but he says that he has always regarded himself as a resident of Ohio. He was born, raised and educated in Ohio, served in an Ohio regiment as a union soldier, and he has always claimed to be a citizen of Ohio. If he did formally leave the state with the intention of becoming a citizen of New York and that can be shown, the senate would undoubtedly refuse to seat him. But we do not believe that it can be shown, and hence we have never taken stock in the effort to prevent him from taking a seat on that account.

We believe in fair play in politics as in everything. The people of Ohio of their own free will and accord elected a democratic legislature for the avowed purpose, among other things, of securing a democratic successor to Mr. Payne. Why not Mr. Brice, an Ohio boy born and bred, an Ohio lawyer who has made his way up to the top of the ladder by his own efforts, an Ohio veteran, as well as some other democrat?

If we are going into this question of residence we fancy that Stewart and Jones, of Nevada, would find it very difficult to prove that they ever had a legal residence in that state of less votes than Erie county.

Speaking of this threat of the republican irreconcilables to refuse to seat Senator Brice, Col. A. L. Conger, of Akron, the Ohio member of the national republican committee, had this to say in a Chicago newspaper:

"It would be very unwise to do so. Brice was elected senator by a democratic legislature, and as for his being a non-resident of Ohio, there is nothing in that. Brice is the best man for the place, and as his election was regular and fair, it would be next to impossible to carry through any scheme to keep him out of office."

The better sentiment of the republicans of Ohio is against the scheme, and the sober judgment of the party outside of Ohio is also opposed to the idiotic movement. Senator Brice was honestly and honorably elected. His credentials are regular and an outrageous overthrow of the will of the people as determined by the election of 1889, would surely return to sorely plague the perpetrators of the outrage. But the senator is not losing any sleep over this matter. The threat does not even annoy him. He is secure in his right and is able to maintain his position.

ELECTORAL INDICATIONS.

The elections this week make presidential forecasting easier. All the states which gave democratic majorities on Tuesday may not keep in line but the weather vane of politics is steady in that direction now. As the states voted this week, and as others presumably will stand, the electoral figures are as follows:

Democratic.		Republican.
Alabama	11	California	9
Arkansas	8	Colorado	4
Connecticut	6	Idaho	3
Delaware	3	Illinois	24
Florida	4	Kansas	10
Georgia	13	Maine	6
Indiana	15	Michigan	10
Iowa	13	Minnesota	9
Kentucky	13	Montana	3
Louisiana	8	Nebraska	8
Maryland	8	Nevada	3
Massachusetts	15	New Hampshire	4
Michigan	9	North Dakota	3
Mississippi	9	Ohio	23
Missouri	17	Oregon	4
New Jersey	10	Pennsylvania	32
New York	36	Rhode Island	4
North Carolina	11	South Dakota	4
South Carolina	9	Vermont	4
Tennessee	12	Washington	4
Texas	15	Wisconsin	12
Virginia	12	Wyoming	3
West Virginia	6
		Republican total	186
Democratic total	258

Two hundred and twenty-three votes are necessary to a choice. The above figures give the democrats 35 to spare. The party can lose Iowa and Massachusetts, which were democratic on Tuesday, and still have six to spare. Except those two states the democrats are reasonably certain of carrying all the rest in the democratic column, and if Gov. Boies should be on the ticket with Cleveland Iowa would likely cast her electoral vote for the democratic candidates. The prospects for democratic success in 1892 grow brighter as the results of the elections this year are more fully understood.

The last nephew of Napoleon Bonaparte is dead at the town of Teano, Italy, aged 75. He was the son of Lucien Bonaparte and was named Louis Lucien. He was born while his parents were detained in England, his father being held a prisoner. He devoted himself to study, was a remarkable linguist, and has been a pensioner on the British government since 1858, $1,250 a year being granted him on account of his linguistic achievements. BANKS AND BANKING.

Gen. Doolittle, of the Merchants, has returned home from the Bankers' convention at Columbus.

William H. Maher is spoken of favorably for the position of president of the Merchants' National when Mr. Boice retires.

The plan adopted by the Union Savings bank of giving a purse to every depositor seems to be very popular.

The Merchants and Clerks Savings bank numbers among its employes some of the oldest men in the city. Ex-President Shoemaker is 83, S. F. Chamberlin, the bookkeeper, is 80, and Mr. Bond has reached the alloted span.

President Nearing, of the First National, is about the only banker in the city who can be approached by the average citizen without any red-tape formality. He is always at his desk, and has a pleasant word for all.

The summer's outing at the islands this summer has improved the health of Vice President Shoemaker, of the Northern National, wonderfully, and his friends are glad to see him around once again.

A few shares of the Merchants sold recently at 140, and it is said that it cannot be touched to-day for less than 145.

The Ketcham National was the Toledo correspondent of the defunct Boston bank, but escaped without losing anything.

Geo. W. Davis, of the Second, shakes his head warningly when he looks at the condition of the city finances. Mr. Davis was the first to sound the alarm, but it went unheeded.

The stock of the Holcomb National is held away above par, and it cannot be got now for love or money. Rob Locke succeeded in getting a few shares the other day.

Toledo banks were never in a more prosperous condition, and with the banks all right the city will eventually come out all right.

DEFIANCE DISTRICT.

Program of the Semi-Annual Meeting at Bryan Next Week.

Secretary W. V. Marsh, of Edgerton, sends the Bee a copy of the program prepared for the sessions of the Defiance district M. E. conference, which are to be held at Bryan on Monday and Tuesday of next week, Rev. Gershom Lease presiding. Some interesting papers will be presented:

Monday Afternoon and Evening.
Devotional exercises—E. M. Rife.
Organization.
Sermon—A. B. Leonard.

Tuesday Morning.
Devotional exercises—Wm. Craig.
Conference business.
"The Influence of the Spirit in Revivals"—T. H. Campbell.
"The Influence of the Word in Revivals"—J. C. Crider.
"The Influence of the Church in Revivals"—W. W. Winter.
General discussion of the above topics.
Provisions of the Discipline for Holding Parsonage Property—W. H. Snook.

Afternoon Session.
Devotional exercises—A. H. Brown.
"Regeneration"—J. B. Smith.
Sermon—R. H. Balmer.
"Sanctification"—W. U. Spencer; discussion.
"The Epworth League in Revivals"—J. R. Colgan; discussion opened by L. E. Wilson.

Evening Session.
Devotional exercises—B. F. Gordon.
"Power of the Saloon"—Mrs. M. M. Farnsworth.
"The Remedy"—Mrs. G. M. Townsend.
Discussion—Eli Myers and F. M. Money.

OWED TO DEMOCRACY.

More tariff, more tax, more boodle, more tin,
Ohio don't bet a d—— democrat in.

IN OUR OWN CASE.

The election of Mr. McKinley will not open a market for a single bushel of wheat or a single barrel of pork.—Courier-Journal.

Was it Bill McKinley or McKinley's Bill that won the battle in Ohio? There is a distinction with a wide difference.—Toronto Empire.

The fact that McKinley believes that his election as governor of Ohio will make him the republican candidate for the presidency next year will but add to the fervor and heartiness of the president's congratulations.—Chicago Herald.

"The only state where there was a national issue," says the journal this morning, "was the tariff." This is a reference to the tariff fight in Ohio. The whole country is ready to fight it out on that line. By all means let it be the tariff.—Kansas City Star.

Perhaps the most plucky and brilliant fight that was made in the recent campaign was Gov. Campbell's in Ohio. He was beaten, as was to have been expected, but he deserves and will receive a higher place in the national democracy on account of his splendid fight in behalf of democratic principles.—New York World.

The Ohio legislature being safely republican the country may look forward between Sherman, Foraker, and Foster this winter. The struggle is certain to be one of extreme bitterness and the end equally unfortunate for the state whether Sherman, the unfailing ally of Wall street; Foraker, the unstable politician; or Foster, whose administration of the treasury department has been so prolific of abuses, be chosen.—Chicago Times.

WILL RAGE IN THE WEST.

Mr. Foster Has Uncorked Another Storm.

It Will Leave the Pacific on November Fifteenth,

And Create Considerable Trouble Before It Reaches the Mississippi River—Electricity and the Subject of Vacuums Discussed.

Copyrighted 1891 by W. T. Foster.

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 7.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from 5th to 9th, and the next will leave the Pacific coast about the 11th, cross the central basin from 12th to 14th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 15th.

It will be a fierce storm when it strikes the Pacific coast, and will continue to be so till it has passed the Mississippi river.

After the 13th it will decrease in force and will not be a severe storm on the Atlantic coast. The tides on that coast, however, will be quite high about the 13th.

The center of this storm wave will not reach the Gulf states, but will cause some rainfall there, and the weather following it will not be very cold for the time of year, but a cool wave will follow it crossing the continent from the 10th to the 14th.

All the storms of November were calculated to be of greater force than usual and this storm wave only of little less force than the greatest of the month, especially in the west.

Electricity and the Vacuum.

Readers of these letters should fully understand that they contain nothing that does not have a direct bearing on the question of a fore-knowledge of the weather. I am trying to get before the people a true basis upon which to build a science of meteorology, believing that orthodox scientists have produced nothing that is worthy of being called the science of meteorology. The weather bureau of the United States does not predict any more than we predict when a railroad train will arrive, merely estimating how fast a storm center will move and where it will go after they know where it is and the conditions surrounding it. To forecast the weather we must know the causes of weather changes, and as I believe that electricity is the immediate cause I am discussing in these letters, the nature of electricity.

Every part of a theory must agree with every other part of it, and readers of these letters will discover wonderful harmonies existing between the positions of the planets, the nature of electricity and the changes of the weather.

Dr. Henry Raymond Rogers is an able advocate of the electric theory and his paper, read before the Chautauqua society of Dunkirk, N. Y., discussing electricity and the vacuum, is so well to the point that I quote from it. He says:

"The best experimenters in electricity are rapidly coming to the conclusion that vacuum is the most favorable condition for electrical transmission. Indeed, the foremost electricians of the present day, like Edlund, of the Royal society at Stockholm, Sweeden, and our own Edison, have declared such to be the certain result of their experiments. Mr. Crooks, of the Royal society, London, has published striking experiments showing the action of electricity in vacuum, some of which confirm the conclusion of Edlund and Edison. Dr. P. H. Van Der Weide, in a paper recently read before the New York Electrical society, describes experiments leading to the same results. He details an experiment which was contrived, consisting of a strong glass tube, two or three inches in diameter and three or more feet long, provided with brass caps at each end, which could be conveniently attached to an air pump and exhausted. He tells us that as the exhaustion proceeded the rarified air in the tube became a conductor of electricity and this conductivity appeared to improve in proportion as the air was more exhausted.

"A legitimate inference from these experiments—though one strangely ignored by this writer—is that had the exhaustion been made complete the perfection of electrical transmission would have been reached. In other words it does not appear that either tenuous air or vacuum is a conductor of electricity but that the transmisability of the electric current is in proportion to the varified condition of the air or its total absence. Absolute nothingness can neither aid nor impede the progress of the electrical current.

"From the abundant evidence which we now possess it is not too much to claim that when the element of resistance to the passage of the electric current is removed, when the motion of electricity is wholly free and unobstructed, its action may be instantaneous, whether within the narrow confines of a tube or in the universal space. The resistance to the progress of the electrical current makes it up to the visibility and to action. On the scale of the laboratory, vacuum is found to be the most perfect condition for electrical transmission.

"On the scale of the universe the evidence of this fact is even more conclusive. Mr. Gordon, a distinguished English authority, in his work on electricity and magnetism, one of the best in this field, tells us that the electrical forces are transmitted only across the best vacuums we have been able to produce but also across the inter-planetary spaces.

"It is now abundantly demonstrated that electrical currents pass to and fro between the sun and earth instantaneously and incessantly and science accepts this as a proved fact. The great Faraday tells us that the movements of celestial bodies in absolute vacuum would be as uniform as those of a mathematical pendulum, whereas a resisting medium pervading all space would cause the planets to move in shorter and shorter orbits and at last to fall into the sun. From the fact that the motions of the celestial bodies are absolutely uniform we may justly infer that all space is practically vacuous and no fact is now known to man which disproves this hypothesis. It is therefore clearly demonstrated, both upon the scale of the laboratory and of the universe, that vacuum is the most perfect condition for electrical transmission.

"If all space is vacuous the phenomena of space must be largely determined by this cosmical condition. If space is void of all else save the electrical currents, ever in play between the sun and earth, these currents must be invisible in their passage earthward and not until they meet their first resistance, which occurs in our atmosphere, can the slightest indications of their presence be discovered. This conflict between the electrical sun currents and our atmosphere those wonderful and mysterious phenomena which we call sun-heat and sunlight become developed. The atmosphere thus performs the identical part in the development of sunheat and sunlight which the carbon point and the platinum coil performs in the production of electric heat and light.

"The intensity of the sunheat and sunlight is due to the amount of the resistance which the lowest strata of the atmosphere offer to the passage of the solar currents. Thus the intensity of the sunheat and the dazzling brilliancy of the sunlight are located in the atmosphere wherein we live, and not at the sun as heretofore believed. For all that we know to the contrary the sun need not be actually hot or bright, it may even be dark, cool and habitable like the earth and yet do all that is claimed for it."

We may add to this argument of Dr. Rogers that outer space is a vacuum only as to condensed matter while it is full of attenuated matter which has been called the ether of space and which I believe to be identical with electricity. Portions of that electricity of space are quiet, stationary, while other portions are moving in currents similar to the waters of the oceans, and these currents carry gross matter that has accumulated in space and build it into or onto the growing bodies of the universe.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS

That contractors are busy closing up the season's work.

That Toledo is the greatest clover seed market in the country.

That the city was never freer from crime than at present.

That John Kunzler would rather talk politics than walk a block.

That the cyclers will have a large crowd on their run to-morrow.

That the Star course bids fair to be more than successful this year.

That the alleys should receive a first-class cleaning before winter sets in.

That the fire department should be enlarged, but where is the money to come from?

That the Maumee electric railroad is not exactly dead, but is being kept exceedingly quiet.

That the Toledo Medical College is enjoying a boom in its new quarters on Lagrange street.

That local militiamen would be glad to hear of Major Hopkins' appointment as adjutant-general.

That Parks Hone is soon to return to the First ward to take up his residence on lower Summit street.

That a big crowd from "the Future Great" will go down to the inauguration ceremonies in January.

That the armory building, when completed, will lessen the receipts of the Memorial hall trustees.

That the reception of the Toledo club on the 11th will be the event of the season in the social line.

That several republican candidates are at work securing preliminary pledges for the local oil inspectorship.

That Councilman Caldwell will retire from the council in the spring, tra la, by a very large majority. Selah.

That some of the old tumble-down bridges in the city will have to be repaired or some bad accidents may occur.

That Toledo will furnish its full quota in the general scramble for office under the reign of Governor McKinley.

That there is no doubt now of the success of the newly-formed evening cooking class at the Manual Training school.

That as a change for the eyes the Lafayette street bridge might be moved around on the wheels once in a while.

That the harbor should be deepened sufficiently to admit of the entering of ordinary vessels without fear of grounding.

That a couple of fine buildings should adorn the vacant property at the corner of Huron and Madison streets, and that soon.

That the street paving completed this year will cost close on to one million dollars, the largest amount reached for a decade.

That Summit street, from Madison to Adams, is still rather exciting for pedestrians, on account of the street railroads.

That the Ohio Yacht club entertainment committee will flash some rare attractions on the members during the winter.

That the old Chamber of Commerce building, to be sold on the 18th inst., will not bring as big figures as it cost to erect it.

That when the improvements are completed at the water works station Toledo will be in first-class shape for a full supply.

That internal revenue receipts, with the tobacco tax off, will exceed those of last year in this district by several thousand dollars.

That much interest centers in the election of the next city council, as the terms of nearly all the officials come to an end in the spring.

That those interested in the blast furnace talked of some time since should move at a livelier rate of speed if success is to be achieved.

That the erection of the new churches for St. Patrick's and the Immaculate Conception parishes will lend an impetus to building operations.

That the work of providing for the new Y. M. C. A. building is not progressing as satisfactorily as many of those interested would wish.

That there will be a great turn-out of the members of Toledo commandery, Knights Templar, at the triennial conclave in Denver next summer.

That the Second ward will have to find another of its residents to serve in the board of election next spring, since Mr. Major is located in the Seventh.

That the women of Toledo have among their number more live workers in church, social, musical and political clubs than any city of its size in the country.

That a new division of the Uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, is in process of formation, composed entirely of members of Harrison lodge, No. 185.

That it will be found in the next 90 days that the term "hungry office-seekers" will be far more appropriate than it ever was to the democratic office-seekers.

That the opening and platting of the various additions to the city during the past summer will have the effect of adding several hundred homes in the outskirts.

That Toledo church pulpits were never manned by abler ministers than at present, the various denominations boasting of having some of their strongest men in the work.

That the owner of the woodyard adjoining the Bee office has an idea there will be a demand for old fashioned fuel this coming winter, judging from the supply being piled up.

That it would be wise not to be carried to too high a pitch in the running up of additional debt for an unlimited supply of parks. The city has several luxuries on hand just now that will require some close figuring to find means to extricate itself.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Dr. Hamilton Griffin, step-father of Mrs. Navarro, formerly Miss Mary Anderson, arrived in New York Sunday. He says that his step-daughter is at her country seat in Kent, enjoying excellent health, and has no thought of returning to the stage.

The Grand Duchess Sergius, who is reported to be one of the best dressed women in Russia, gets but few of her gowns from Paris. She learned scientific dressmaking in London, and with the aid of a couple of clever women of her bed-chamber makes nearly all the dresses intended for home use. Only her gala costumes come from the artistes of Paris.

When the emperor and empress of Japan drive out no one is permitted to look down at them. Their subjects may look at them, but the spectators must sit or kneel humbly on the ground while the carriage passes, so that eyes are always raised to look up at these grand personages. All spectators must doff their hats and caps and bow profoundly while the carriage passes. No one must speak or make any noise of any kind.

When "La Marechale" Booth, the Salvation Army leader's brave daughter, now in this country, was spreading the faith in Paris with Maud Ballington Booth, then Miss Charlesworth, a mob of Parisian thugs drove away the police and raised a riot around the young salvationists. They were entirely at the mercy of the turbulent throng but a few quiet words from them and the singing of some of the army's songs restored quiet and there was no further interruption.

Senor Montt, the Chilian representative at Washington, is a small man, like most of his countrymen, and is possessed of suave and gentle manners. He has the usual Spanish complexion, black whiskers that cover a good portion of his face and a pair of small sharp eyes. He speaks English indifferently and does not say much, most of the loud talking that comes from the Chilian legation having its source in the mouth of Mr. Julio Foster. Foster is a shrewd, Yankee-born man of 65, aggressive and energetic.

John Evans, of Denver, who was the war governor of Colorado, is a hearty and well-preserved man, now in the seventies. He was Lincoln's friend, and on the strength of his friendship was made the executive of Colorado, then a territory. Gov. Evans has another claim to notice in the fact that the Chicago suburban town of Evanston was named for him. Evanston was an extremely pious place in former years, so much so that conductors on the trains used to yell out "Heavenston" when they announced the station.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr's first essay in authorship was made after the death, at Galveston, in 1867, of her husband and three sons. They were all swept off by yellow fever, and it was to aid in supporting her three daughters that Mrs. Barr began to write. She is an English woman by birth, of pure Saxon blood, as reader for her father, Rev. W. H. Huddleston, she was brought into association with men and books, and she was also his constant companion in his preaching tours in Devon, the seacoast villages of his parish. She thus gained the love for the sea that breathes through her writings. Mr. Barr was a Scotchman. He and his wife came to this country soon after their marriage, and lived at Austin, Texas, throughout the civil war.

One of Garfield's biographers says that he greatly weakened his influence when in congress by talking too much. He was thoroughly informed on every question of the time that came up for consideration, and his exhaustive and often dogmatic speeches aroused impatience and sometimes resentment among the other members. "Gen. Garfield ought to give us credit for knowing something," said one congressman, and he voiced the opinion of many. Like the Athenians who were tired of hearing Aristides eternally called "the Just," they grew weary of Garfield's elaborate knowledge.

KIN DARK AS COAL.

Afflicts a Well-Known Gentleman. Pitable Subject to Look Upon. Suffered Terribly. Whole Body Covered.

Given Up By San Francisco Doctors. Might Have Saved $5000, as He Was Cured for $5 by Cuticura Remedies.

I have many times studied over what CUTICURA has done for me: it has restored me to good health and happiness, for before I tried CUTICURA REMEDIES I was given up by all the doctors in San Francisco; but if I had only taken a certain gentleman's advice and tried CUTICURA REMEDIES sooner, I should certainly have saved from $500 to $600. I was a most pitiable subject to look upon with eczema, and suffered terribly. I was almost as dark as coal from my instep up to my knees on both legs, and after that it broke out all over my body, but after using half a dozen sets of CUTICURA REMEDIES I was perfectly restored to good health, and have enjoyed the same ever since (which is for over two years). A great number of people visit my establishment, and I have told hundreds of people what CUTICURA has done for me, but have thought that I ought to write and let you know, so that you can refer anyone in this county to me.

THE ARAB AND HIS HORSE.

As breath to the nostril,
As blood to the heart,
As life to the body,
The point to a dart,
To Kaza, my Kaza, my peerless white steed,
The friend of my bosom, the friend of my need,
Are the notes of the charge, the thrilling war cry,
And, swift as an arrow to danger we fly.

As rocks to the waters,
The shore to the main,
As oaks to the tempests,
The heights to the plain,
So Kaza, my Kaza, and I firmly stand,
Against the invaders that threaten the land;
To the last ruddy drop our hearts we would
Ere the conqueror's feet our wild steppes should gain.

As wings to the eagle,
As thought to the brain,
The flash to the lightning,
The nerve to a pain,
So quickly we skim the plain's broad expanse,
Our veins mad with fire, our souls in a trance;
O Kaza, my Kaza, my horse without peer,
Great Allah could grant thee a soul without fear!

A statistician in Paris had the patience to count the number of words employed by the most celebrated writers. The works of Corneille do not contain more than 7,000 different words, and those of Moliere 8,000. Shakespeare, the most fertile and varied of English authors, wrote all his tragedies and comedies with 15,000 words. Voltaire and Goethe employ 20,000. "Paradise Lost" only contains 8,000, and the Old Testament says all that it has to say with 5,642 words.

The fragments of a fine marble statue of the best period of Greek art have been found in the Tiber embankment excavations. The head is of extraordinary beauty and well preserved. So far as the fragments have been put together, the sculptor Monteverde and the painter Morelli pronounce the statue to be a chef d'oeuvre of Greek art. It will shortly be exhibited to the public in the new museum in the Bath of Diocletian, where other important objects lately found in the embankment works are preserved.

A clinometer is an instrument for measuring the rolling of a vessel at sea, and it is usually in the cabin companionway. When it indicates 55 degrees any one can easily understand that something unusual has happened. The clinometer in the steamship Elsie marked a roll to that extent on the last voyage from Funchal to Baltimore. Near Bermuda she was struck by a hurricane that shifted several times and made a heavy confused sea. During a most violent rolling a glass decanter on the cabin table was turned bottom up, emptied, and cracked from the base up without having been rolled off.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Bronson Howard's Shenandoah at Wheeler's Opera House.

Several Good Companies Coming Next Week.

Robert Downing, Frank Daniels, Evans & Hoey, Emerson's Minstrels, and After Dark—Play Pointers.

Bronson Howard's great drama, Shenandoah, was greeted with a crowded house at Wheeler's last evening. The play is an especially strong one with a splendid plot and combines most harmoniously the tragical incidents of war, with the story of love and also a vein of comedy here and there.

The powerful dramatic situations are well brought out and the scenic effects are fine. The signalling from the Tree Top mountain was especially effective and the perspective maintained was perfect.

The company contains several excellent people, but as a whole is not as strong as when Shenandoah was last produced here.

The piece will be repeated this evening and the sale of seats has been large.

Robert Downing.

Robert Downing, the greatest exponent of the robust characters of the stage now before the public, will appear at Wheeler's Opera house on Monday evening in the well known impersonation of Marc Anthony in Shakespeare's masterpiece, Julius Caesar. Mr. Downing will be supported by his own company of players, headed by that well known talented actress, Eugenie Blair.

"Robert Downing stands to-day the foremost English-speaking tragedian of the age," says a dramatic writer. This is certainly a great achievement, and shows a wonderful growth in the technique of this young artist. He is an actor of the vigorous school, and many old theater-goers are forcibly reminded of Edwin Forrest by his methods and the heroic mold in which his characters are cast. He is magnificent in repose. It is a repose of massiveness of stability. His greatest power in action is that which half suggests repose, yet conveys a distinct impression of resistless energy when occasion shall call into play his full sources. The superb physique, the powerful voice, the splendid deliberation are all indicative of momentum held in check.

No actor of to-day so successfully indicates reserved power as does Mr. Downing. When aroused to the climax of action his propulsion is superb and impressive, yet so mellowed that his impersonation is in the lighter and softer shades are as pleasing and effective as the climaxes where stirring passion and spirited exclamation are required. Time improves the fermentation of the spirit as experience seems to advance and ripen this very promising actor, the only one we can look to at present in this country to perpetuate the heroic school.

After Dark.

One of the best melodramatic and spectacular productions now on the road is the great drama, After Dark, now in its fourth successful season under the management of Wm. A. Brady. It will be the attraction at the People's theater the week beginning next Monday, November 9.

After Dark deals largely in what may be termed the shady or "sporty" side of city life, introducing concert halls, boxing matches, crooks, life in the lower state of society, and introducing scenes, far safer viewed upon the stage than would bear a visit in real life without the accompanying protection of a policeman. Added to the spice of the realistic dialogue, the sensational incidents, the truthful reproductions of city life, is a most absorbing plot, carrying with it a story that increases in intensity as the action moves along, leaving the spectator impatient as the act drop falls to know what will follow, when the scenic curtain rises again.

A fortune in itself has been expended in the beautiful scenery, the great railroad effects, and the different mechanical contrivances, while the company of artists depicting the characters in the play have been selected for their peculiar fitness to each part, there not being a single novice or amateur in the entire cast, which is composed exclusively of high salaried and experienced professionals.

As the modern audience enjoy at least a dash of variety performance in their dramatic glass, this will be provided in great shape by the engagement for the concert hall scene of the great fistic gladiator, Jim Corbett, and Sweeny and Ryland, the comedians who make their first appearance in America in four years.

Frank Daniels.

How many really funny men have we on the American stage to-day? Comedians we have galore; but how many are there who are really funny? There is a great deal of difference between a man who is mechanically funny and the man who is naturally funny. The man who is naturally humorous cannot help himself. He will be funny at any stage of the game—at any time or place. It is not easy to define this power, for power it certainly is. It is a gift that is born with the man, and a great gift it is. But how few actors we have who possess it.

Frank Daniels is peculiarly gifted in this direction. He has an odd individuality and droll mannerisms in his stage work that are distinctly original. His humor is irresistible, his smile is infectious, and personality is comedy itself. No other comedian is like him—he is like unto no other comedian. He owes his great success to this remarkable originality. He has a field all to himself. No one can imitate him, for he has nature's copyright. He will be at Wheeler's opera house with a big company, Wednesday, November 11.

Emerson's Minstrels.

This splendid company of black face artists is booked for the Wheeler opera house next Friday evening, November 13.

Of Billy Emerson it can be said his name has for years stood among the leaders, premiers of burnt corkism. A few years ago Billy had an elevator full of wheat, but there came a time when he bought more oats than he could pay for and the bottom fell out of his corner. From a monied monarch he suddenly found himself the wandering minstrel of his boyhood days. As a duck took to the water he doffed the sealskin overcoat and the gaudy diamonds with which he was once decorated, retained a few of the brightest sparks and donned his discarded suit of end clothes.

A Parlor Match.

That irresistable team of fun-makers, Evans and Hoey, in a Parlor Match, will hold forth at the Wheeler opera house next Thursday, Nov. 12th. A "Parlor Match" has been here several times, but each year it is changed and improved, new songs and music are introduced and Toledo people always like to see it. The piece is said to be better than ever this year.

As it will appear here on Thursday evening it will be an almost entirely new production and the new features, specialties and music are said to be of a very high and interesting kind.

"The Materialization of the World's Fair Characters." The return of the Levey sisters and that charming little soubrette, Miss Minnie French, are additions to the company this year. "Old Hoss Hoey" will sing his latest success, "A Job Lot," and Evans will crack many new jokes, and do much toward the evening's entertainment. A Parlor Match is well worth seeing and to those who wish to laugh we advise them to see the funniest of all the Hoyt farce comedies.

Notes.

Jack Burns, who was with Mr. and Mrs. Kendall last year is with the Jefferson-Florence company this year.

A Dark Secret closes a most successful week's engagement at the People's theater to-night. The "Standing Room Only" sign has been up every night since Saturday.

P. T. Johnson, a member of Evans and Hoey's company, has received an offer from Buffalo Bill to join the Wild West show in Antwerp, Germany, the coming season.

Marion Manola is creating something of a sensation because she has a man dresser who takes the place of a maid and looks after her wardrobe. He is an Englishman and was secured by her in London.

Mrs. John Sherwood gives her first reading on "Five Seasons in London," at Whitney & Currier's, on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Tickets can be secured from Mrs. J. B. Ketcham at the Boody house.

"The Trumpet Call," the new drama by George R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, which is now the reigning attraction in London, has been secured by Manager Eugene Tompkins, of Boston, who intends soon to produce it in this country.

The Cadi has passed into a regular attraction at the Union Square. The actors by this time know their parts as well as they know their names, and their ease and agility lends force to Bill Nye's unique and well worth seeing "border drama," as he calls it.

A curious play called the "Persecution in Russia," is being put on in a little bowery theater in New York. It is written by Russian and deals with the troubles of the Hebrews who have been exiled from that country and its audiences are made up mostly of these same exiles.

Robert Downing, the well known and popular young American tragedian, is a prominent and enthusiastic member of the order of the Knights of Pythias, belonging to Columbia division, No. 3. U. R. K. P., Washington, D. C., and of Webster lodge No. 7, of the same city. Mr. Downing has no less than eight knights in his company.

The total prohibition vote, on governor, was 323, and the total people's party vote was 172.

Died.

Dr. A. Williams, a well-known veterinary surgeon of this city, died last evening of brain trouble, aged 65 years. The funeral was held this afternoon. The deceased was the stepfather of Cora Nelson, the well-known actress, who resides here.

Mistakes of Voters.

In this county between 200 and 300 voters lost their votes on all except governor, by making their cross opposite their candidate for that office instead of opposite the designation of their party. As between the two parties, the result was about a stand-off, as one party did this nearly as much as the other. In some precincts there was as high as 20 to 30 of these ballots.

In several precincts in this city the voters made their X on the stubs and left the ballots entirely unmarked. In several instances they made their marks to the right of their candidate instead of to the left.

Preparing for Winter.

Louise Tobin was arrested last night for stealing a sealskin sacque from L. C. Smith's residence. A few weeks ago this girl ran away from home and was captured at Cincinnati.

The case of Mrs. Josephine Wertz v. the T., C. & C. railroad was on before common pleas court yesterday. The case will be given to the jury to-day. The case is a suit for damages for $ large amount for the death of the lady's husband, who was killed by a yard engine in this city some time ago while in the employ of that company. A large number of employes were here as witnesses.

A Democratic Squire, Anyhow.

Oliver P. Nigh, the democratic candidate for justice of the peace in Portage township over Wm. McKinz, the republican candidate, who failed to get his certificate filled in time. The retiring incumbent has served for the past twenty-five years.

Horse Fell On Him.

Joe Clark, a deliveryman in the employ of Schwartz Bros., had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday. While leading a horse he slipped and fell, and the horse fell on him. Fortunately no bones were broken. He will be sore for some time to come.

NON-PARTISAN W. C. T. U.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers—Other Business.

The Non-Partisan W. C. T. U. held its annual meeting and election of officers at the residence of Mrs. Judge Bentley, on Superior street, yesterday afternoon. Routine business was transacted, and it was decided to have a "Chalk Talk" delivered by Mrs. Bailey under the auspices of the union.

Mrs. McGlone and Mrs. Mixer were appointed a committee to look up headquarters and make arrangements for some mission work.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. J. R. McGlone; first vice president, Mrs. J. L. Watson; second vice president, Mrs. Dr. Willoughby; recording secretary, Mrs. S. E. Wilson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Dennison; treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Irwin.

The day of meeting was changed from Friday to the first and third Monday of each month. The next meeting will be held with the new president, Mrs. J. R. McGlone, in the Huron block.

FREDERICK GLEASON.

Many people will be surprised to learn that Frederick Gleason, the first publisher of an illustrated newspaper in America, still lives as an inmate of the Old Men's Home in Boston. Gleason's Pictorial Drawing Room Companion is well remembered by many of our people. It was chiefly literary in its character, and not in the highest class in literature, but it was an unexceptionally family paper in its moral tone. Its cuts were very primitive as engravings, as they would naturally have been at that time, but Frank Leslie was one of his engravers. The paper made much money, and had some people as contributors who have since achieved reputation. Mr. Gleason was classed as one of the rich men of Boston, but he had the too frequent fate of being impoverished by stock speculation.—Boston Herald

THE FIRST MEETING

Of the Household for the Month of November

A Pleasant Occasion—Cheery Words From Canada, Florida, the East and West—Fall House-cleaning—"Teacups" and Chat.

THE HUMAN HARP.

There is a harp in each human breast,
The strings of which are never at rest;
Where music forever breathes and lingers,
Awaken'd by myriads of viewless fingers,
That play, like the hum of fairy wings,
Their notes on its thousand quivering strings.

This heav'n-born harp is a priceless boon
In its mortal frame, with its strings in tune;
But whether notes of this living harp
Be gentle or tender, flat or sharp,
When louder rung depends always
On the ear that hears, and the hand that plays.

There is Love who comes on fluttering wings,
Ah, how it thrills when she touches the strings.
Fear thinks he is heard all over the land,
As he strikes the chords with a master's hand;
But to Faith and Hope is the mission given
To touch the notes that are heard in heaven.

They bear it away when the rest are gone,
And lift the frail harp, broken and lone;
And when Death plays the last sad strain,
Breaking the chords he shall ne'er touch again,
They bear it away on joyous wing,
And string it anew where the angels sing.
Carrie Meyers.

THE NEW STREET-SWEEPER.

It is not the starving girl, with fingers bony and blue,
Who sees the gleam of gold in a penny's copper hue.
It is not the wrinkled crone, hardened to misery's doom,
Who could ride on a witch's taunt by mounting her worn-out broom.

It is not the huge machine, with clank of its iron rhyme,
That murders your sleep serene, and strangles the steeple's chime.
'Tis a queer, queer form, so fair that a colder heart might deign
To kiss in a rapture sweet the hem of her regal train.

But I pause in wonder mute to see that queenly train
Sweep through the dust that clings, and drag through mires that stain.
Careless of costly lace, reckless of sheen that shines
From the rich brocade that weaves suggestive sinuous lines.

I think of the fable traced by poets in myths of old,
A sorceress fair to the waist, and below, a snake unrolled;
And I fear the legend is true, as I look on her forehead pale,
For the woman I dreamed I knew leaves behind her a serpent's trail.
—George Towner in the Century.

Chat Among Ourselves.

We are with you Blanche, by a large majority (must be excused for using political phraseology just now). It is a cross turn one's attention from the fields and woods and byways bright with autumn colors and sweet with autumn odors, and do battle with dust and soil, those perpetual and inveterate enemies of woman's peace and well-being. And the recompense comes when the home for the loved ones is spick, span and clean from attic to cellar, and we are ready for the cold crisp days that follow. We can only so order our days as to make the labors as light as possible and the days of leisure as many as may be.

The Household will be glad to hear that L. C. H. is having a rest and visit. Some of them know how patiently she has watched by sick beds, and how untiring are her ministrations to others.

While all good natured persons approve of innocent fun, all sensible persons must deprecate the mischief that is done by the customary license of All Hollow Eve. Such pranks have lost their flavor since we no longer believe in witches and fairies, and while it may be very funny for boys to smear an old woman's white doorstep with black paint, or pile rotten cabbage stumps on her door rug it means worry and trouble and expense for her. Our children, if we want them to grow into gentlemen and gentlewomen, should be so taught that they will find no pleasure in what gives pain and worry to another.

Nellie Willey sends, with her timely description of gifts, directions for making paper bon-bon boxes, with illustrations, which will appear next week. It is the thought and sentiment with a gift that makes its value, not the amount that it costs. If one can expend a large amount of money in a gift and not "feel it," its significance is small comparatively. If one shall purchase a gift that cannot be afforded, then is the pleasure spoiled for the recipient. So, then, there is a delicate touch of remarkable good judgment necessary in consideration of the question, and conclusions usually agree that the unpretentious souvenir, the work of the giver, if possible, is really the most expressive. And there's room for another little sermon here on the work and worry connected with gift-making for those who must steal time from sleep or needed exercise to fashion the souvenirs.

The Household is always glad when its members make journeys from home, to have letters from them describing new scenes and their impressions in the midst of them. It is thus that many of us are pleasantly conducted into green fields and pastures new at little expense and with little trouble. So will we go gladly with Mrs. Tayer and enjoy a glimpse of the booming western city she visited recently, and thank her for remembering to tell us about it.

The sympathies of the Household will go out to Mrs. Warner, in her loss and grief. We will also appreciate her thoughtfulness for others in the midst of it. She little knows what cheer she has carried into many places where sunshine was needed. The assurance will be her rich reward.

Sir Edwin Arnold has been interviewed on "the woman question." The woman question, like the tariff question, seems doomed to perpetual discussion. There is a similarity, if you notice. It is a question of "protection" in her case as in the other, of protection which doesn't protect and efforts pro and con to make her see things which are not, and so be satisfied. But here is what Mr. Arnold says:

I think everything is possible to women. I do not believe in the inferiority of women. The moment you admit them to academical honors, what happens? Miss Fawcett becomes senior wrangler, and ladies take high degrees. There is no question whatever about their capacity. * * I am not good at the financial side of journalism. My impression is that no woman at present makes any large income, although there is no reason why they should not be as well paid as men.

Kindly said and true enough, Sir Edwin; and Miss Fawcett has troops of company in her march-away with academical honors of various degrees. While women do not make large incomes, they save snug little sums from small pay, while men (with incidental exceptions for cigars, drinks, election bets and bets in other places) with their larger salaries can scarcely keep even.

Everybody says "women should be as well paid as men for the same work," but nobody seems to know what to do about it. Possibly women will have to bestir themselves to find the root of the injustice. It is buried deep in the accumulations of custom, prejudice, greed, self-interest, rights and privileges, but it's there. The woman who earns her living by the sweat of her brow, the labor of her hand, or the thought of her brain, should ask no privileges, but should demand all the rights that are vouchsafed to any citizen. She needs all the strength and influence that the workers with whom she must compete are possessed of.

On the writer's desk are two newspaper screeds on women's skirts, presumably, both written by men. One an editorial from the Boston Herald and the other a special from Boston to the Washington Post. The last mentioned describes the rainy day suit designed by Mrs. M. E. S. Ingersoll. This Boston apostle of shorter skirts waited so long for a bad day on which to exhibit her costumes, she wearied and came out in the sunshine for the promised promenade. Here is a description of the suit:

The material is repellant waterproof, light of weight, and soft, dark green of color; in this case, trimmed with tan braid, worn with Turkish trousers, top-boots, and a cloak and hat to match the gown. The boots were of the finest leather and had opera-stage wrinkles in them. The skirt which was 36 inches long (41 inches on a lady the height of Mrs. Ingersoll would touch the ground).

According to this report, the only masculine criticism heard, as Mrs. Ingersoll went about the streets in her new rig, was that "the skirt was an inch or so too short."

It's a very difficult matter to get a woman's skirt just the right length to suit her husband and uncles and father and father-in-law and masculine cousins. The writer in the Post screed has a time over the long skirt. He becomes utterly despairing, and cries out:

All the arguments, all the sarcasms and ridicule, all the prayers and besoechments of all the men on the face of the earth would not be likely to induce the single woman to cut an inch off the bottom of her skirt, or make any other change in the apparel in which she has enwrapped herself.

Evidently this man doesn't know that the ridicule of men and their flings at women who are strong-minded enough to wear their skirts out of the mud, are the chief reasons why weak-minded women haven't followed the style and made it the fashion. When men editors say a short-skirted, blouse-waisted frock is pretty and becoming and they wish all women would adopt them, the battle is half fought. They scold and fume at short skirts and at long skirts, and convince sensible women that they had better dress as best suits their own comfort and convenience and "never mind." (But such "sensible women" are not plenty enough to start the fashion—there's the rub.)

Isn't this an inspiring figure of speech?
Far on the mountain's lofty brow,
By summer's awful thunder riven,
The wind is quarrying steps of snow
That build a stairway up toward heaven.

George W. Bungay must have been gazing at the white peaks of great, lonely Shasta when the thought came to him.

A number of royal European ladies are addicted to the use of tobacco, if all reports be true. Queen Margherita, of Italy, smokes constantly when she is alone, as does the czarina, who has a pretty boudoir, copied from an apartment in the Alhambra and filled with palm-trees, which she uses as a smoking-room. The Empress of Austria, the Queen Regent of Spain, the Queen of Portugal, Queen Natalie of Servia, and the Queen of Roumania, all smoke cigarettes.—Newspaper Squib.

This has a somewhat shocking sound to unaccustomed ears, and the reality of the picture no doubt would be a shocking sight to unaccustomed eyes. But whist a bit! They tell us a cigar soothes a man's disturbed nerves, puts him at peace with the world and makes him an angel in his home. Now one woman out of every ten, at least, is traditionally "a bundle of nerves." Perhaps this tobacco anaesthetic is what she has been needing all these years. Who knows?

Marginal Notes.

Do you practice noting with a pencil mark the wise and pretty things that please you as you read—or better yet, of copying them? Some person referred to one who makes marginal marks as "a bothersome idiot." There are book lovers who enjoy having just such idiots read a volume before them. It's quietly conversational, like some one saying, "I like this, do you?" or, "I believe this is true," or, "If this isn't true it ought to be." Here are some extracts from Amelia Barr's new story, "A Sister to Esau:"

"The air was full of the sweet wandering souls of flowers."

"There is nothing in nature that has such power over a noble imagination as a plantation of pines."

"If I am a fool I congratulate myself that I am one through choice and not from want of sense."

And these two from Kipling and Balestier's new story in the Century magazine:

"It is strange that men to whom life is a joke find comfort in women to whom it is a prayer."

"No man can successfully conduct a love affair and a political canvass at the same time."

Kansas City, Mo., as Seen by a Wolverine.

My first visit to Kansas City, Mo., has been one of surprise and delight. I am surprised at the length, breadth, heighth and depth of Kansas City. Not a city like Rome of seven hills, but seventy times seven.

Here I witnessed for the first, the Priests of Pallas parade. The floats were each preceded by a band of music, each float drawn by four caparisoned horses, the god of Neptune reigned. The subjects were a silvered, golden, glinting, sparkling, shimmering representation of the animals of the sea, so perfect that we recognized McGinty in the bottom of the sea before looking at the posters to tell us of the design. Each float reaching to the third story window, glittering in its allegorical panorama, was simply indescribable. A gorgeous pageant witnessed by thousands of Missourians, Nebraskians and Kansasites.

I must speak of one mercantile establishment in the city (no advertisement, please), a city in itself—Bullene, Moore, Emery & Co. Under one roof you will find a dry goods store, hardware, furniture, drug, clothing, crockery, shoe and book stores; also millinery, dress and cloak making departments, retiring rooms for the exhausted, lunch rooms, dressing rooms, reception rooms, where you can write letters to your friends and drop them in the postoffice box over the desk; perfection in every detail, from the pneumatic system in handling cash to the life-sized horse in the seventh story for ladies to mount while selecting their riding habits. We went up in the tenth story of the New York Life Insurance building, where we had a grand view of the city. I looked with amazement upon the work of man. I am not surprised at the works of Nature; I know God can do all things, nothing impossible with Him. When I contemplated how short the time since man had made this "wilderness to blossom as the rose," rearing churches, school buildings, immense packing houses, stock yards, where eight hundred and twenty carloads of cattle have been delivered in one day, the push of Kansas Cityans seemed marvelous.

The street car service is remarkable; there are fifteen different lines, two more in contemplation. They run so smoothly, flitting around curves, up and down steep hills, skimming past each other, reminding one of flotillas.

Bright, bustling, busy, booming, bluffy Kansas City. I go to my Michigan home with nothing but words of praise for thee. What a world this is for shiftings and siftings. As Mrs. Prentiss says, "What an unmanageable thing family affection is; true enough, that marriage involves one union and many separations.

H. FERRY TAYER.

An Autumn Diversion.

What is so rare and beautiful as a bright autumn day? To many this season of the year is the most delightful of all, for it is then that the trees put on their bright colored dress, each one having a distinctive style and shade, but each varying with the other in beauty, giving to the whole earth a sense of warmth and brightness that nothing else can impart; then the late autumn flowers in both field and garden stand forth in their beauty and spicy odors, seeming all the more lovely because beside them stand their fellows of the summer, brown and withered. Then the sunshine dances around as if it were just giving us a taste of what it might do if it were only a mind.

It is on one of these rare, delightful days, which every one feels they must be out and enjoy because they will so soon be a thing of the past, that the mother of the home remarks, "The house-cleaning will begin to-day." What a change comes over the spirit of our dreams! No matter how bright the day, this remark always casts a gloom over those who are so unfortunate as to hear it. What visions rise before us of bare floors, curtainless windows, chairs, tables, books and rugs everywhere but where they should be, and meals anywhere and anyhow.

We always have, and I suppose always will receive any amount of hints and advice about house-cleaning, but where is the woman that ever found any advice that would just exactly fit her case? For instance, we are told to begin with one room and clean and settle that entirely before going to another. Now that is an excellent idea; there could be none better; the only trouble is the idea does not always work. We can get the room all torn up and cleaned without any trouble, for a woman generally does that, but a little difficulty arises when we find that the man has an engagement and cannot put down the carpet till afternoon, and cannot black the stove till to-morrow, and the plumber cannot fit the gas pipes for two or three days and perhaps a week. What is the methodical housewife going to do now? She rushes to her book of directions, but alas, finds nothing there to fit this emergency. What can she do but flit on to the next room, and lo, before she is aware of it the whole house is torn up, and confusion reigns supreme. In the midst of it all perhaps the good man of the house comes home, and must have his lunch immediately, as he is called away on business. Then she may consider herself fortunate if he is of such disposition that he can sit meekly down and eat it from the proverbial top of the flour barrel and say or do nothing worse than quote:

"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year."

There is no denying that such times are distracting and trying. But what a pleasure it is after it is all over to sit down and know that every carpet is cleaned and every curtain dusted, every nook and corner as bright and shining as soap and water can make it. It has been a great labor and trouble, but I am sure everyone will agree the results fully compensate for the inconveniences.

BLANCHE.

Perrysburg.

From the Land of Flowers.

Dear Home Friends: Once more I call; this time with a heavy aching heart; for death has removed a loving father, a grand citizen; and best of all, a noble Christian. My loss I know is his gain I cannot say more, as my heart seems breaking. This I only write that you may see what has kept me away so long, and now I will try and answer your inquiries. No I do not live on the sea shore, but near enough so I can go there quite often. We are having heavy gales, and several boats have been wrecked lately.

What is the coquina? I will tell you; coquina rock is a natural formation of broken bits of sea shells firmly cemented together by the action of the sea water. Some three hundred years ago, before there was any lumber, the beautiful Coquina rock was used for building purposes. St. Augustine, sometimes called the ancient city, was builded of coquina, and as you know, many of the houses stand there to this day (grim, weather-beaten reminders of the hardy Spaniards who erected them as places of defense, sea wall and city gates. The whole city when new was surrounded by a high wall which has, before time, assisted by the Seminole Indians tumbled down. But the strangest thing of all is their old burial grounds and their graves of them, or rather places where they deposited their dead, for they did not bury them as we do, but placed them in massive coquina coffins, then covered with a huge slab of the same, and then left them on the top of the ground, setting around like so many dishes on a table. Here are the coquina coffins of all sizes, where they have been for centuries defying alike the sun and rain, and how many more centuries they will remain there you and I will never know.

Coquina is pretty and was originally quarried from the Coquina Island, out in the ocean, one mile east of St. Augustine. So you see I did not make it; one lady asked me if I did.

Pearly B., I can get the sea moss for you now as the tide has been very high and brought it in. Are you still in the hospital? I wrote you but received no reply. About the sea spiders; I will say there are many kinds; there is the shrewd brown spider, and the comical looking big and little clawed spider, that runs sideways wonderfully fast; he has two claw feet, one is about ten times bigger than the other, it is a little late to get them, but I will try, if they are still wanted. They will have to be packed so as not to crush, and that will make the box weigh, and you better send 10 cents for each, or 15 cents for both, and I will mail them to you.

Several children and young collectors have asked for specimens; I am not in very good health to collect for you, but still I can send you what I have at home or what is near by. I can send you a couple of pieces of fine coral that came from the East Indies; a piece of shell Indian money; a piece of orange wood; also wood of the famous holly and mistletoe, big thorns from an orange tree; a piece of the pretty palmetto bark; also a piece of the palmetto wood; also from the sea shore I can send you sea beans, and brilliant scarlet sea peas, and the sea moss; also scales from the Gar, a huge monster of the deep; the Gar scales are sharp pointed and used by the Indians for killing small game. There is any amount of beautiful cactus growing wild here, and if you wish I can send you a rooted cactus, and a piece of the coquina rock; then I have some pretty beads made of olive wood, quite a lot of them that were brought from Jerusalem. I think I have enough of them to spare each of you one. Yes, I can send the Florida moss, too. I can't get the cotton balls here, but will send you the seed and you can plant them like a house plant and grow your own cotton balls. I can send you three or four Easter lily bulbs, as those I brought from the woods and planted have multiplied very fast. Can also send you two or three kinds of flower seeds if you care for them, but you must send stamps for postage. Send ten or a dozen two-cent stamps and I will mail them all to you. Yes, if I am well, I can later send you the hanging moss for Christmas decorations, same as last year.

Yours, MRS. F. A. WARNER.

Hallowe'en Over the Border.

Dear Bees: Pursuant to my plan for a little journey and visit I arrived at St. Thomas, Ontario, in safety, and found dear friends waiting to give me a warm welcome. They call this a cold, cruel world, but I cannot find it so; there are kind, loving hearts that greet me wherever I chance to go.

St. Thomas is a beautiful town of 11,000 inhabitants. In passing through the art galleries, whose face should greet me but that of our own Frances Willard. She is a great favorite here. Her lecture before the Alma college, St. Thomas, was a grand success.

Oh! but the Imps (some pretty large imps, by the way), did raise such havoc here Hallowe'en. One man by the name of Douglas, who owned a very valuable horse, found in its place the next morning a poor, bony old crowbait, that could scarcely stand alone. In front of the church was a farm roller of very large dimensions; on the roof were some bobsleighs. Out-buildings were thrown over, and other depredations more or less funny and provoking, committed. This was at Yarmouth Center. At St. Thomas special police were appointed to prevent such performances.

I attended services at the beautiful little Methodist church at the Center last evening, and listened to a very able sermon by the Rev. William Penhall. Let me tell you of the labor of the faithful pastor on that day. He rides a circuit of 20 miles and preaches three sermons. Good bye for this time; perhaps you will hear from me again. L. C. H.

Inexpensive Gifts.

Burnt Match Holders—Select a small thin glass (whiskey glasses they are called) and crochet a cover of silk that will cover the sides and bottom of the glass. Fasten a small silk ball on the bottom of the cover and run four pieces of narrow ribbon in and out of the meshes until they come out at the top and then tie together a quarter of a yard above the top of the glass. Another covering sometimes used is silk arasine crocheted in a very open pattern into a cover using arasene to hang it up by instead of ribbon. Still another: Take tinsel thread and sew strips six inches long close together on a band of narrow ribbon until the ribbon is covered a distance long enough to reach around the top of the glass. Fasten around the glass and then tie all the strands together with one piece of tinsel at the bottom of the glass so that the ribbon will just come to the top of the glass when it is in place. This can be hung with tinsel thread and is prettier than either of the above and makes a nice present where just a trifle is wanted for a gift.

Fancy Bag—Take a pretty silk handkerchief and on the wrong side mark a circle that will be an inch in front of the edge at its nearest point. Just inside the mark sew a piece of No. 2 ribbon, sew on both edges and then run a piece of ribbon or silk cord around inside the ribbon so it will pull up from both sides. On the four corners sew silk balls and I think you will find this will be a very convenient bag for many purposes.

Over Our Teacups.

Corn suppers, pink teas, orange teas, and such, where everything is of the same kind, flower or tint, are novel and ingenious, but, truth told, monotonous for keen enjoyment. A basket supper is one of a kind that will bear repetition; the ladies prepare luncheon for two as dainty, rich or elaborate as they choose and can afford, and put it in tempting form in a picnic basket, along with a card bearing their name. Gentlemen auction off the baskets and take luncheon with the lady whose name he finds himself possessed of.

To Make a Salad.

"Two boiled potatoes strained through a kitchen sieve,
Softness and smoothness to the salad give;
Of mordant mustard, take a single spoon,
Distrust the condiment that bites too soon:
Yet deem it not, thou man of taste, a fault,
To add a double quantity of salt;
Four times the spoon with oil of Lucca crown,
And twice with vinegar procured from town,
True taste requires it, and our poet begs,
The pounded yellow of two well-boiled eggs:
Let onions' atoms lurk within the bowl,
And scarce suspected, animate the whole;
And, lastly, in the flavored compound, toss
A magic spoonful of anchovy sauce;
Oh, great and glorious! oh, herbs lous meat!
'Twould tempt the dying anchorite to eat.
Back to the world he'd turn his weary soul.
And dip his fingers in the salad bowl."

Kitchen Conference.

Thanksgiving is in the air and turkey-talk is in order. Here is the proper way to prepare the bird for the oven and cook it just to a turn, vouched for by one who always follows the directions she gives:

Select a good young turkey, weighing from eight to ten pounds. Pick it thoroughly clean. Stuff the breast and body with dressing prepared from 1 1-2 quarts of fine stale bread crumbs, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of pepper, one teaspoonful of summer savory, one-half teaspoonful of sweet marjoram and one-half teaspoonful of thyme. Mix these well together and add one-half cupful of melted butter and one pint of washed oysters. Fill the breast and put the remainder of the stuffing in the body. Truss the turkey by fastening the legs and wings securely to the sides with skewers, and with string across the back from the skewers. Never put a string over the breast of a bird.

Now dredge well with salt. Take soft butter in the hand, and rub it thickly over the turkey; then dredge thickly with flour. Dredge the bottom of the roasting pan with flour, place a meat rack in the pan, and lay the turkey on its side on the rack. Put the pan into a hot oven, and, when the flour is brown, put in water enough to cover the bottom of the pan. When one side of the turkey is nicely browned, turn it and brown the other side; then place it on its back. Baste it every 15 minutes with the water in the pan, renewing the water as it cooks away, and dredge with salt, pepper and flour. The last basting should be with soft butter.

Allow one hour and three-quarters for a turkey of eight pounds, and 10 minutes for each additional pound. For the gravy, the liver should be boiled until thoroughly cooked. After removing the bird from the roasting pan, place the pan on the stove, and add to its contents one cupful of water, or more if necessary. Stir it well, scraping everything from the bottom and sides of the pan. Let it boil up once, and if it is not thick enough, mix a little flour with a little cold water, and stir it into the pan as it boils. Then strain it; mash the liver very fine and add to the strained gravy.

You will discover that the person who attends this turkey from the skewer to the last dash at the gravy will not do much of anything else. Some of us would omit a portion of the mint.

As a matter of curiosity the hostess appends a pudding recipe which Emperor William ate (a pudding made from the recipe is meant to be said), and went so wild over it, he begged the directions to take home to the empress, or rather the pastry woman (or man) in the imperial household: (It's no wonder there's insanity in the family, and suicidal mania.)

Take a pudding mould, butter it thoroughly on all sides, then lay in, first, boiled smoked ham cut into the thinnest of strips, next a layer of fried potatoes; upon this a layer of lean bacon cut as thin as the hand, then follow with a layer of mushrooms surmounted by a layer of chopped cooked meat. On this spread another layer of mashed potatoes. Cover the whole with a rich gravy and bake slowly in a moderately heated oven.

IS Your Baking Powder Pure?

It may masquerade as "absolutely pure;" perhaps you think it is; but you may know whether it is adulterated with ammonia or not if you

Test it. Mix one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder with one spoonful of water in a tin cup; boil thoroughly for a few moments, stir to prevent burning, and if ammonia is present you can smell it in the rising steam. As baking powder, when thrown into water, will effervesce, do not mistake bubbling for boiling.

There is no ammonia, no alum, no adulteration whatever in Cleveland's baking powder, and in the laboratory and in the kitchen

Cleveland's Baking Powder Stands all Tests.

MOST PEOPLE
Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.
Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?
No.
Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?
That seems plain enough.
Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:
That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.
The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.
Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

The Markets.

London wheat market strong, 3d per quarter higher. Country markets generally dearer. Liverpool wheat firm, 1d per 100 pounds higher; corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,160,957 bu, compared with 594,049 bu on the same day last year.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 566,908 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain this week at eight principal western points are, wheat 7,965,000 bu, corn 1,397,000 bu, oats 2,705,000 bu. In previous week wheat 8,364,000 bu, corn 1,429,000 bu, oats 2,841,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 wheat 3,475,000 bu, corn 1,804,000 bu, oats 1,933,000 bu, showing an excess in receipts this week over 1890 of wheat 4,590,000 bu. Corn an increase of 407,000 bu. Oats an increase of 772,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 448,925 bu of wheat, and exports of corn were 141,034 bu and of oats 88,437 bu.

The exports of grain from the same ports in this week were wheat 1,997,000 bu, corn 641,000 bu, oats 215,000 bu.

Bradstreets reports the exports for the week from both coasts to November 5: Wheat and flour, 3,820,000 bu. Previous week, 3,381,000 bu, showing an increase this week of 439,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are strong and higher on wheat and firm for corn.

Russian Export Duty.

"The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Times telegraphs his paper that he learns from the best sources that a heavy export tax will be imposed on wheat probably a fortnight or three weeks hence."

We comment on the above that the best sources referred to may be Jew dealers in wheat on the long side.

German Import Duty.

We referred yesterday to the probable reduction of the import duty on cereals into Germany. It is supposed to be already agreed upon, but, as we have before intimated, it does not seem to influence prices as was expected.

Ohio and Indiana Boundary Line.

We congratulate the cities of Fort Wayne, Richmond and others upon their assuming the title of Buckeyes, and discarding that of Hoosiers.

The Markets To-Day.

There has been some rain on the winter wheat fields in different portions of the belt. Not enough to be of much benefit, but only to prove that it can rain. This feature in the deal had a weakening effect on prices which have been lower all day. Against this, is the higher English markets. Bradstreet's report herein gives more than 400,000 bu increase in exports of wheat, and at eight western points the receipts are 399,000 bu less. These are bull items.

In New York November wheat closed 5-8c and December 3-4c lower. November corn 1-4c lower. December steady. November oats 1-2c lower.

After New York closed at 12 o'clock the cable reports from Paris and Berlin were received. Paris was 3-4c to 4c up on wheat and largely advanced on flour. Berlin was up on wheat equal to 4c. Nothing said as to the basis or reason for the advance. Under these influences Chicago advanced on wheat from the lowest point 7-8c for December, but lost 1-4c of it and closed at 96 3-4c, a loss of 1 1-8c compared with yesterday. November corn 1-8c up. November oats 1-4c down.

In Toledo.—The trading in wheat futures has been moderately active, and May was the favorite deal. The market opened about 1-2c lower, and later the loss was increased 1c more, but before the close prices improved 1-2c. December closed at a loss of 1c, and May 3-4c.

On call November sold at $1 00; December at $1 01 1-4 to $1 00. After the call December sold at $1 01 1-8@$1 01 1-4 down to $1 00 1-4, and closed at $1 00 3-4. May sold at $1 06 3-4 to $1 06 3-4, and closed at $1 07 1-2, asked.

Cash wheat was in good demand, but the decline was greater than in futures; No. 2 soft sold at $1 00 1-2 to 99c, and closed at 99 1-4c, a loss of 1 1-4c. No. 3 soft at 97c to 96c; No. 4 soft at 90. Rejected No. 1, 92, L. S.; No. 2 at 81c; No. 2 hard at 96c; No. 3 at 90c. Timothy at 88c to 89c.

Corn more active. On the call January sold at 45. After the call No. 2 at 56; January 45 1-2; May at 46 1-2; No. 3 at 44; No. 4 at 43c. Oats, No. 2, 33; No. 2 white at 32 3-4. Rye was dearer. No. 2 cash and November at 93 to 94 1-2; No. 3, 90 1-2.

Clover seed was fairly active and higher. Receipts are falling off in all directions and the demand yesterday and to-day is increased. Market closed 5c higher. Prime for cash, $4 55 to 4 65, closing at $4 60; December early at $4 60; February at $4 75 to $4 77 1-2; No. 2 at $4 35 to 4 40.

Trading was more active during the two hours of business to-day than in the same hours of yesterday. The sales to noon amounted to 210,211 shares. The market opened weak, the first prices as a rule being fractionally lower than those of last evening. Jersey Central was especially weak, declining 1 1-2 per cent. to 112. The early dealings developed considerable activity and while the selling was continued some support was apparent in some of the leading stocks. Lackawanna, Louisville, Burlington, the Wheeling & Lake Erie stocks and some others scored small advances, while St. Paul, Atchison and others recorded fractional declines. During the greater part of the first hour trading was limited, with prices feverish and irregular. The only important changes were a decline of 1 per cent. in Chesapeake & Ohio firsts preferred and a recovery of most of the early loss by Jersey Central. In the closing hour there was considerable unloading in anticipation of an unfavorable bank statement. This anticipation was fully verified when at 11:30 the bank statement was published, showing a decrease of $5,353,375 in the reserves. Prices declined steadily throughout, and closed at about the lowest point. The decline ranged from 1-8 to 2 per cent.

U. S. Yards, Nov. 7.—Cattle—Receipts 3,500; steady. Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; weak; 10c lower. Heavy and medium, $3 70@4 10; light, $3 40@3 75. Sheep—Receipts, 2,000; firm.

TOLEDO BEER GOOD ENOUGH

For the Members of the Central Labor Union—The Pabst Brewery.

To the Editor: At the regular meeting of the Central Labor union held Thursday of this week I was instructed to answer through the press the statements of the Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee that they had no difficulty with organized labor in their city, and that as there was no brewers' union in Milwaukee and they employed union men of other trades in their business, there should be no fight made on the scale of their beer. The most conclusive answer, in my estimation, is the publication of the following from the Trades' Council and the Carpenters' Council of Milwaukee:

Milwaukee, Oct. 1, 1891.

To the Trades and Labor Unions of America:

Fellow Workingmen—The Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee for some time past has been antagonistic to organized labor. The Pabst Brewing company has several buildings in course of construction here which are being built by "scab" contractors, which is in direct violation of promises made to a committee from the Trades Council and also the Carpenters' Council of this city. They have not a union man in their employ.

On the recommendation of the Carpenter council and the committee that visited Capt. Pabst in reference to the differences existing between him and the carpenters and steam fitters, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Capt. Pabst, of the Pabst Brewing company, has repeatedly violated his pledge given to the trades unions of this city, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Trades Council of Milwaukee, that the American Federation of Labor be requested to taboo Pabst beer and notify the affiliated organizations to that effect.

As the Pabst brewery is one of the largest in the world, the fight between it and organized labor in this city is being watched closely and much depends upon the success of this "Taboo." Workingmen! Union men! Help us in our fight. Don't drink Pabst's beer.

By COMMITTEE.

The Central Labor union of Toledo has come to the conclusion, after a full and free discussion of the matter, that considering the fact that Toledo beer is made by union men and citizens of Toledo, therefore as far as the members of that body are concerned, Toledo beer is good enough for them.

At the last convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Detroit in December last, the Pabst beer was placed on the "Let Alone" list, and as far as we know it is still in the same unenviable position.

ROBERT F. BOOTH.
President Central Labor Union.

For wakefulness, weakness or lack of energy take Simmons Liver Regulator.

AN ERUDITE ECHO.

In the course of last summer, says the Boston Globe, some strangers of distinction were induced to visit a wild and unfrequented retreat in a distant part of the Highlands, chiefly from the report they heard of an echo which was remarkable for the clear and distinct nature of its reverberation.

On reaching the spot whence the trial of its powers is usually made their guide put his hands to the side of his mouth and bawled out, with the lungs of a Stentor, a salutation in Gaelic, which was repeated with a precision that seemed beyond the expectations of the party.

One of the gentleman, by way of trying the strength of his voice, put his hand to mouth in the same manner as his guide and called out:

"How far are we from home?"

These words, much to the surprise of their guide, were also repeated, when poor Donald, with a simplicity which brought a smile over the faces of all present, exclaimed:

"You may think it is strange, gentlemen, but this is the first time I ever heard our echo speak English."

"I have no doubt," said the gentleman, "but it can repeat other languages if you put it to the test," and instantly bawled out some brief questions in French, Spanish and Italian.

Donald looked more dazed than ever.

"Well, I must say that's very queer. My own father and my own self have known that echo for more than 70 years and we never knew it use any language but Gaelic before."

"Your echo is more learned, then, than you supposed," said the gentleman, laughing, though at a loss whether to impute Donald's remarks to archness or simplicity.

"You may say that, sir," said the poor fellow, with an expression of earnestness that was highly amusing to those present; "but, as the echo has never been out of the country, where can she have got all her education?"

HARRISON'S DESPERATE STRAIT.

The democrats of Indianapolis, President Harrison's home, have carried the city election by an increased majority. This has evidently made the little man in the White House angry and sore, and he has struck back to the best of his ability. A mysterious chest, which has been most carefully guarded in the war department for twenty-six years, has been brought out and its secret revealed to an anxious people. The contents, a waterproof, a shawl and a pair of spurs, portend, without a doubt, a renewal of the old lie that Jeff Davis was caught dressed as a woman, which is to be used as a campaign argument. The democrats of the North, however, will probably continue, in their wild, democratic way, to carry elections, even in the face of this hideous threat.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

We May Hear Theosophy's Doctrines Expounded.

Interesting Meeting of the Colloquial Club—The Emerson Club—Woodbridge W. C. T. U.—Other Meetings.

The regular meeting of the Women's Colloquial club, yesterday afternoon in the Law kindergarten rooms, again drew out a large attendance of cultured ladies. Mrs. Judge Harmon presided, and the paper of the afternoon was read by Mrs. Mary J. Cravens. "Discipline" was its title and its purport was that the trials and afflictions which fall to all in their journey through life tend to the good of the individual, and by broadening the individual life and bringing it into more sympathetic touch with other lives, the world is benefited.

The discussion upon the paper was lively, interesting and beneficial to all, and was participated in by Mrs. Judge Harmon, Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, Miss Mary Law, Miss Emily S. Bouton, Mrs. Ellen S. Fray, Mrs. Claudia Q. Murpy, Mrs. A. E. Lang and others. For the first time in the history of the club a gentleman was present, Dr. Chas. Cravens being the invited guest, and participating in the discussion.

The next meeting will be held in the same place Friday afternoon, November 20, when Mrs. Judge Bentley will give the paper; subject, "Expression." The paper following Mrs. Bentley's will be by Miss Bouton, subject to be announced.

The Emerson class will meet with Mrs. Breckenridge, 2025 Collingwood avenue, Monday, Nov. 9, at 2:30. Mrs. Cravens will lead the meeting. A paper will be given by Mrs. Goodwin, entitled, "Emerson Among His Friends," and the poem, "The Day's Ration" and "Essay on Nature." Part I. will be read and discussed.

The Theosophists of the city are expecting a visit from Mr. W. Q. Judge, who is the vice president of their society. He will favor the public with an exposition of the somewhat novel doctrine of Theosophy in a lecture. The lecture will be given on Monday evening, November 16. The place will be announced later. In regard to theosophy, or the "wisdom religion," now being taught by oriental scholars in thought centers of the western world, the increase of interest in an understanding of its doctrines is remarkable. The last meetings Mrs. Annie Besant is giving in London before her departure for India, are largely attended.

The Theosophy class of Toledo meets Monday evening next with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wheeler, Seventeenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Tillinghast, of Eleventh street, entertain the New Century club Friday evening. Mrs. F. D. Jermain reads the paper of the evenig.

The adjourned meeting of the Toledo Humane society is held Tuesday evening next, in the room of the society.

The Ladies' Union of the Church of our Father holds a business session with Mrs. Dan Segur next Friday at 2:30 p. m., 922 Broadway.

The Dairy-maids festival, drill, and other preparations, are progressing satisfactorly. Thirty-six young ladies met for rehearsal at Mrs. A. D. Pelton's, Friday evening. The Dairy-maids chorus, "Five O'clock in the Morning," will be sung by Mrs. Ainsworth. The costumes, music, dancing, and not least the supper, will be of the first-class order, for which the ladies of the Church of our Father are noted. Pythian castle on the evening of the 20th will be a scene of beauty, pleasure and social enjoyment.

The regular meeting of the Toledo Society of Economic Inquiry will be held Wednesday evening next in Steadman's Business college. By request Mrs. Rosa L. Segur will repeat the paper on "Taxation" which she gave before the New Century club. The discussion upon the paper will be led by Rev. George Candee and Miss Olive Brown, and will then be open to the meeting. The general public are invited to these meetings.

The executive committee of the Ohio Woman Suffrage association holds business session in this city Friday evening and Saturday morning next, with Mrs. Dames Rosa L. Segur and E. S. Fray, 916 Broadway. Members are expected from Columbus, Akron, Cleveland, Willoughby, Painesville, etc. They will be entertained by the above named ladies and Mesdames Edward Bissell, A. E. Lang, Chas Peck and J. S. Eck. If time can be had from business labors a social reception will be given.

Woodbridge W. C. T. U. meets Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. J. Freeman, 2022 Collingwood avenue. Interesting reports will be received relative to the coming evangelist meetings and other important affairs, and all members should be present. Visitors from other unions will be welcomed. The change of hour of meeting to 2 o'clock should be remembered.

The Day Nursery circle of Kings' Daughters are holding a meeting in the Central Congregational church this afternoon, to elect officers and finish the work which is preliminary to opening the nursery.

The members of all Toledo clubs and societies, as well as all others interested in the discussion of sociologic reforms and economic questions are cordially invited to attend the public reception given the Knights of Labor in Memorial hall on Tuesday evening next. The chief exponents of the Order in America, including General Master Workman Powderly, will speak briefly upon the aims and work of this organization in the direction of industrial reform.

London, Nov. 7.—The Times' Valparaiso dispatch says Admiral Montt has been unanimously elected president of Chili, and has accepted on condition that he be free from partisan obligations. He regards his acceptance as a personal sacrifice to the wishes of the country.

New Water-Tight Paper.

A firm of German paper and cellulose manufacturers have just introduced into the market, under the names of the unicolored and two-colored water-tight cellulose papers, a material that can be applied to most varied purposes.

The paper can be used for book-backs, table-cloths and as a temporary cover for roofs, as well as for packing goods. It can be laid on damp walls and as a coating for maps; in short, its applicability is extraordinarily manifold.

This cellulose paper is far cheaper than parchment. It does not become sticky through heat, nor does it crack from cold, as it is the case with oil-cloth. The disagreeable asphalt odor is not perceptible.—Paper Mill.

CROUPY SOUNDS

At night, from baby's crib, are distracting to parents who are at a loss for a medicine equal to the emergency. Not so with those who have Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. A dose of this medicine affords certain and speedy relief. To cure colds, coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, and the various disorders of the breathing apparatus, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has no equal. It soothes the inflamed tissue, expectorates and imposes. Cap. Call For promotes ration, duces recovery. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children were subject."

"I use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my practice, and pronounce it to be unequaled as a remedy for colds and coughs."—J. G. Gordon, M. D., Carroll Co., Virginia.

THE DEPTH OF MISERY

How to Surely Escape It.

For abject misery nothing exceeds the condition of the dyspeptic. Sufferers from dyspepsia are irritable, nervous, cross, blue, discouraged, depressed in mind and miserable in body.

Good health means good digestion, and you who cannot eat because food distresses you, have gas, faintness, sourness, sinking or gnawing at pit of stomach, poor appetite, swelling or bloating, malaria, who are constipated, bilious, with dizzy, dull-feeling head, bad taste and feel depressed, lack strength and energy, remember that it is your stomach and weakened nerves which cause all your difficulties.

How to overcome these distressing conditions is the great question. There is one remedy which never fails, the greatest of all stomach medicines, DR. GREENE'S NERVURA. If you have not tried this wonderful remedy which so quickly and perfectly regulates the stomach and bowels, assists digestion and aids assimilation,

Do so at once and good appetite, perfect digestion and sound health will be yours. Purely vegetable and harmless. All druggists, $1.00.

"I suffered much pain, could not eat or sleep well, and felt miserable. I used DR. GREENE'S NERVURA and took it but a few weeks before I was completely cured. I advise all who are complaining to use DR. GREENE'S NERVURA.

NEED NO CLOCKS IN LIBERIA.

Explorer Buttikoffer says that a clock is rarely seen in the farm houses of Liberia, and many of the town residents have no timepiece of any sort. He adds that there are few civilized countries where a timepiece can be dispensed with so conveniently. The sun rises at 6 a. m. and sets at 6 p. m. almost to the minute the year round, and at noon it is vertically overhead. Many of the people become so expert in telling time by the sun that they are rarely more than a quarter of an hour out of the way. In place of alarm clocks they depend upon the crowing chanticleer to arouse them in the morning.

MUST SUPPORT FORAKER.

Wauseon, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Fulton county is a hot bed of Forakerites, and the "boys" who pushed Ely and Rorick through to victory are without an exception for Foraker first, last and always, and both senator and representative will undoubtedly represent and follow the dictates of their constituents.

Salvation Oil, the great pain-remedy, fills a long felt need. First-class liniment for 25c. For paroxysms of asthma use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. It will relieve you at once.

The qualities of our clothing are so superior, the general character of its appearance so perfect and its values so good it has no competition save in the best "order made" garments.

MRS. SHERWOOD'S READINGS.

At the solicitation of a number of ladies interested, Mrs. John Sherwood has been secured for two readings, which will be given at Whitney & Currier's music hall on the evenings of November 9 and 12. The subjects will be "Five Seasons in London" and "Visits in Spain." Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. J. B. Ketcham at the Boody house.

EXPELLED FROM RUSSIA.

Vienna, Nov. 7.—The artist, Pennell, who was arrested in Russia on a charge of sketching forts and prisons, telegraphs that he was confined 36 hours and then expelled from Russia.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
